TRUMP BANS DEALINGS WITH OWNERS OF TIKTOK, WECHAT

Executive orders by US President Donald Trump on Friday gave Americans 45 days to stop doing business with them

45-DAY DEADLINE FOR THEIR SALE

Unless an American company acquires them, the two apps will be removed from Apple and Google app stores in the US in 45 days. Analysts say the tight deadline would open the door to a pressured sale of the apps. Microsoft reportedly expanded its talks with ByteDance on acquiring TikTok on Thursday. Trump has indicated his support for the talks

DON CITES STATEMENT BY INDIAN GOVT

- Trump alleged the apps collect users' data and pass them on to the Chinese government, which poses a national secuirty threat
- In justifying his order, the US president cited a statement by India's Ministry of Information Technology saying TikTok was "stealing and surreptitiously transmitting users' data" | P10

17 dead as plane skids off runway at Kozhikode

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Kozhikode/Tpuram

IN Kerala's biggest plane mishap, an Air India Express aircraft carrying 190 passengers including crew from Dubai to Kozhikode skidded off the runway while landing in bad weather.

At least 17 persons including its pilot Captain Deepak Vasanth Sathe and co-pilot have died in the accident while 40 suffered grievous injuries. The injured have been admitted to nearby hospitals.

An official statement by Air India Express said the flight IX 1344 from Dubai to Kozhikode, which is being conducting service as part of the Vande Bharath Mission, skidded off the runway while landing and fell into the side of the nearby Cross Belt Road along the Kondotty-Kunnumpuram stretch.

"There were 174 passengers plus 10 infants, two pilots and four cabin crew members on board. As per the initial reports, rescue operations are on and passengers are being taken to hospital for medical care. No fire was reported at the time of the landing," it added.

The aircraft slipped and had a 35-foot-deep fall, splitting it into two pieces, leaving the debris all over the runway. Though a thick smoke came out from the cockpit, no fire was reported. "The Kozhikode airport landing strip is a tabletop like the one at Mangaluru. If the engine of the plane had caught fire, the devastation would have been massive," said local MLA T V Ibrahim.

The incident brought back the nightmares of the May 22, 2010 crash of Air India Express flight IX 812 at Mangaluru International Airport after it slipped off the tabletop runway, fell off the cliff and burst into flames killing 158 passengers.

Runways located on hilltops create the optical illusion of being at the same level as the plains below when a pilot comes in for a landing.

"As per initial assessment, the tabletop runway along with bad weather has resulted in the unusual landing, leading to the mishap," the MLA said.

The rescue operations were launched with the help of the locals who gathered after hearing the loud noise.

Fire and Rescue teams of two districts- Kozhikode and Malappuram- also rushed to the spot soon after the incident.

The passengers who suffered major injuries, were later shifted to Kozhikode and Manjeri Medical Colleges.

Prime Minister Narendra Modi, Union Home Minister Amit Shah and Kerala CM Pinarayi Vijayan expressed shock over the tragedy. P7

He had won the sword of honour and was an accomplished fighter.

18 killed, 48 missing as landslide buries homes

NEJMA SULAIMAN @ Iduki

THE torrential rains that have been lashing Kerala, particularly its hilly terrains and northern districts over the past two days, have spelt doom for Rajamala near Munnar in Idukki district.

As many as 18 people, including five women and two children, died and 48 went missing after a major landslide swept away a portion of the Pettimudi hills late on Thursday night, burying 80 houses along four lanes.

Twelve people have been injured. Rescue work were continuing late into Friday night.

The settlement belongs to the Nyayamakad tea estate of Kanan Devan Hills Plantations. Naturally, the 80-odd residents, mostly migrant tea plantation workers, were not prepared for such a disaster, which struck around midnight when most of them asleep.

"The entire village was shattered," said Deepan, a 25-year-old resident of Pettimudi.

"Everything happened in a flash." Deepan lay half-buried in the mud for nearly eight hours before a group of men, who too had survived, pulled him, his mother and two others out by around 6.30am on Friday.

Only the forest personnel and the local residents could make it to the site until Friday afternoon before a 100-member rescue team including revenue, health, police as well as fire and rescue personnel joined them for the rescue operations. Local residents alerted the forest officials about the incident around midnight.

ROADS CUT OFF, RIVERS IN SPATE IN MANY DISTRICTS AS INCESSANT RAIN POURS MISERY

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE

HEAVY rain which caused floods and triggered landslides continued to disrupt normal life in several districts in Karnataka on Friday. Many rivers are flowing above the danger mark and standing crops and properties have been damaged in many places.

A day after a massive landslide swept away their house at Bhagamandala in Kodagu district, there was no trace of the five people, including a temple priest and his family members, who went missing. The situation was so bad that the National Disaster Response Force (NDRF) could not resume search operations on Friday. The team is likely to take up the task on Saturday.

In Kodagu district, which has been ravaged by floods and landslides for the second consecutive year, the Cauvery river is overflowing and water has entered the Bhagamandala temple, blocking major connecting roads in the district. Residents living in low-lying areas in Kushalnagar are shifting to safer places anticipating floods, while relief centres have been opened in the district

Responding to the emergency situation, Chief Minister B S Yediyurappa directed Chief Secretary T M Vijay Bhaskar to proceed with taking up emergency measures without waiting for his approval. P7

Rajapaksa back with thumping victory

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE

SRI Lanka's ruling Podujana Peramuna party has secured a massive two-thirds majority in the country's parliamentary elections held on Thursday, giving the Rajapaksa brothers the mandate to rewrite the country's Constitution and increase their power.

According to the official results, the party won 145 seats in the 225-member house. It also has the support of at least five allies, taking its total strength to 150. The biggest loser was Ranil Wickremesinghe's United National Party, which won just one seat.

The Samagi Jana Balawegaya party, formed by Wickremesinghe's former deputy and the presidential candidate Sajith Premadasa, won 55 seats and is the second largest party in the Lankan House.

The victory will allow Rajapaksas to push through constitutional changes including the 19th Amendment which had curbed presidential powers while strengthening Parliament. P11

THE results of the Secondary School Leaving Certificate (SSLC) examination in Karnataka will be announced on August 10, Primary and Secondary Education Minister S Suresh Kumar announced on Friday.

"The SSLC exam results will be announced on Monday, August 10 at 3 pm," Kumar tweeted on Friday. The exams were conducted from June 25 to July 4 at 2,879 centres across Karnataka amid opposition from several quarters due to the Covid-19 pandemic. About 8.4 lakh students had appeared for the examination.

With the aim of introducing continuous learning among children during the pandemic, the Education Department had launched Vidyagama earlier this week. The minister the initiative is to ensure that all children have access to technology-based education and that teachers should be mentors so that children do not lag behind in learning during this time of transmission.

"All the DDPIs, and field educators will be guided by video presentations explaining the project plans. There is pressure to restart schools but we are waiting for the road map from the Central Government. In the meantime, we are trying to reach the children with the scholastic project as our children should not be left behind in learning", he said.

He added that teachers should develop learning materials to facilitate these classes, which can be conducted on the phone, through TVs, in schools, in school halls, or under the shade of trees. "We have asked for two separate television channels for our department," Kumar said.

KIA BEATS MUMBAI AIRPORT, BECOMES SECOND BUSIEST

Records 4.5L passenger footfall during lockdown; Change in travel patterns visible

S LALITHA @Bengaluru

IN the midst of the gloom in the aviation industry, Bengaluru has something to cheer about. Kempegowda International Airport (KIA) has emerged as the second busiest airport in the country, a position long held by Mumbai's Chhatrapati Shivaji Maharaj International Airport, as per latest statistics released by the Airports Authority of India.

Figures for the first quarter of financial year 2020-2021 were made public earlier this week. By recording 4,54,704 international and domestic passengers from April to June 2020, it has beaten Mumbai, which had 3,19,412 passengers in the same period. New Delhi's Indira Gandhi International Airport had the maximum patronage with 12,31,338 passengers in the same period. All the airports have shown a dip in patronage by 92% to 97%. What's worse, even Kolkata has gone above Mumbai, thereby pushing it to fourth position (see box).

According to a KIA official, an average of 180 Air Traffic Movements (arrivals and departures) were recorded at Bengaluru in June, compared to nearly 700 ATMs before stoppage of regular flight operations. "As per data (of Aug 6), a total of 91 arrivals and 94 departures occurred at the airport. This included international as well as Vande Bharat Mission flights." International footfall in the 4.5 lakh figure in Bengaluru stands at 19,427, stats show.

A senior aviation official attributed the dip in performance by Mumbai to far more stringent restrictions in place at the airport there, and reduced number of operations due to Covid-19, rather than any major improvement by other airports.

A spokesperson of airport operator Bangalore International Airport Ltd said, "Ever since domestic scheduled operations were allowed by the Centre on May 25, 2020, state governments have had varied approaches to the number of flights allowed in order to manage Covid-19. That, coupled with local curfews and lockdowns, has led to an alteration in travel patterns. Under the circumstances, it is expected that changes are likely in traditional passenger numbers across airports in India."

On possible policy steps being taken by the government to boost passenger traffic, Director General of Civil Aviation, Arun Kumar, told TNIE, "We have laid down the Standard Operating Protocol. Likelihood of getting infected on board a flight is extremely unlikely, as has been established."

SOME AIRLINES MAY CLOSE DOWN: EXPERT

Aviation expert Captain Mohan Ranganathan spoke about the bleak scenario of the aviation industry right now. "There is no business, family, or tourism travel. Hotels too are shut. Hence, there is no chance that domestic travel will pick up for at least three years," he said. International travellers contribute to nearly 50% of domestic travel and this segment is now completely closed. "Only those stranded abroad are coming by the few international flights being operated," he said. By the time, things become normal in the domestic segment, a few airlines would have shut, he added.

State governments have had varied approaches to the number of flights allowed to manage the spread of Covid-19. That, coupled with local curfews, has led to an alteration in travel patterns. It is expected that changes are likely in traditional passenger numbers across airports

Int'l returnees have to submit Covid declaration form on Yatri portral

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Bengaluru

THE state government has issued revised guidelines for international returnees wherein all travellers should submit a self-declaration form on the Yatri Karnataka portal, at least 72 hours before the scheduled date of travel.

Business or short-term travellers, and those with a negative RT-PCR report will be exempted from quarantine norms. However, the person needs to fill a self-declaration form with respect to the authenticity of the test. Symptomatic passengers will be sent to Covid health centres for testing. Three swabs will be taken — one nasopharyngeal swab for Rapid antigen test (RAT) and two swabs, throat and nasopharyngeal — for RT-PCR test. Those who test positive for RAT will either be asked to go for home isolation or will be shifted to a Covid hospital. Those who test negative need to take the RT-PCR test. After this, if they are found negative, they are advised 14-day home quarantine, but if found positive, they will be shifted to a Covid hospital.

Passengers travelling for more than 48 hours but less than 7 days have to get a RAT test done and only after getting a negative report, can they complete their work and return. Those who come with a negative report during arrival will be exempted from testing provided the test has been conducted within 96 hours before the journey.

Conduct yoga classes in open spaces: Govt

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Bengaluru

THE state health and family welfare department has issued Covid-19 guidelines in yoga centres and gymnasiums. "The practice of Yogic Kriya may be avoided for the time being. It can be practised in open spaces," the guidelines read. All yoga centres and gyms in containment zones shall remain closed to public.

"People above 65 years of age and below 10, those with comorbidities, pregnant women and lactating mothers are advised not to use gyms in enclosed spaces," the guidelines stated.

Masks have to be worn at all times, but during yoga or exercises in gyms, only a face shield may be used as using a mask causes difficulty in breathing.

"The timings of classes should be staggered. There should be a gap of 15-30 minutes between classes to avoid an overlap of members arriving and leaving. Limit the number of people per session," the guidelines said.

Temperatures inside should be between 24-30 degrees Celsius with a relative humidity between 40% to 70%.

The guidelines also included details on what must be done if any positive cases are reported from the premises.

Plan 2nd airport for B'luru: Industry body tells govt

RAMU PATIL @Bengaluru

THE State Government must start planning for a second airport in Bengaluru to keep pace with the city's development over the next few years, according to a report by Bangalore Chamber of Industry and Commerce (BCIC).

"Our analysis indicates that the location of the second airport would be ideal in the stretch between Bengaluru and Mysuru, based on the economic growth pattern, demographic splits and demand potential. This will ensure that the benefits of connectivity drive additional growth in Mysuru, Hassan, Kodagu and Harohalli. With infrastructure being a key driver of industry and investment, a second airport will not only help to decongest the city, but will also help industry expand towards outlying areas thereby fostering balanced growth," the report says.

The BCIC feels the case for a second airport for Bengaluru "seems to be compelling as most of the factors that will help make such a project profitable are favourable. And, given the ground-level challenges, it is imperative that a decision be taken quickly." The report lists land acquisition and development, environmental issues, road and rail connectivity, competing destinations and local issues as the main challenges.

Devesh Agarwal, former president of BCIC and Joint Managing Director of Jesons Technologies Pvt Ltd, said they are not against the Bangalore International Airport Ltd (BIAL), but are looking at a number of factors, including the projected growth in air traffic and the need to keep pace with development. "The second airport should be a standalone one and they (BIAL and the new airport) should compete with each other genuinely," he said, adding that their report looked at the need and viability of a second airport for Bengaluru.

Large Industries Minister Jagadish Shettar, who released the report on Friday, said the BCIC members had discussed with him about the report. Shettar said that he will look into it and discuss with the CM.

08th August : This is my last word on this week's theme – multiverses. According to the scientists who believe in multiverses, each one consists of so many universes that eventually they must begin to repeat each other. In other words, somewhere, right now, in another universe, there is another you, reading these words, written by another me!

ARIES (Mar 21 - Apr. 20)
The gradual drift of your planets around the zodiac is now raising the question of your finances. It looks very much as if your ability to spend money on your own needs will be determined by your relationships with other people. That should restrict your freedom of action, but not for long.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 - May 21)
The Moon's sensitive presence in your chart should make you think again about what partners need, and how you can provide it for them. It's all a question of putting other people first, and realising that your turn will come within about two to three weeks.

GEMINI (May 22 - June 21)
This ought to be a day of work, and even if you have the opportunity to indulge your favourite hobbies you should be putting in much more energy than normal. The fact is, you deserve to do well. Watch out that emotional intensity doesn't undermine your health, though.

CANCER (June 22 - July 23)
You never quite let your serious intentions slip, but even you should relax today and be as youthful, spontaneous and creative as possible. The theme for the day is self-expression, and you should do everything to bring out your personal talents.

LEO (July 24 - Aug. 23)
As the Moon sweeps through your chart you should take pains to deal with home and family matters. It is especially important to turn your attention to causes of discontent which may still be active, even though you did your best to deal with them some time ago.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 - Sept. 23)
It's an optimistic day, but one when you can think long and hard about your future plans and prospects. While you may therefore hope for the best, you should tie yourself firmly into what is genuinely possible. There's little point in chasing pipe-dreams at the moment.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 - Oct. 23)
This will almost certainly be an extravagant moment, although thankfully the planets offer you a safety clause: you may not have to keep many of your promises. Some commitments may therefore remain hypothetical, perhaps because other people actually forget about them!

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 - Nov. 22)
It is always the case that the Moon's presence in friendly regions of your chart strengthens your emotional position. You may therefore find other people, including those to whom you are intimately linked, will gently bow to your Scorpionic will.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 - Dec. 22)
The Sun sails through your chart, very subtly awakening areas of your personality which have lain dormant for too long. Over the next couple of days, you may display a tendency to retreat into yourself, after which you will finally re-emerge very much more confident than before.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23 - Jan. 20)
Venus and Jupiter are an excellent team and are soon to reward all your efforts with extra material benefits. Your spending plans, in the meantime, may be rather more grandiose than necessary. Actually, it might pay to be more realistic in future.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 - Feb. 19)
Some of your latent ambitions will be awakened today, including a desire to fall in love all over again, to travel, and to see the world. It is a moment for adventure, not for taking the easy option. See to it that the people who need to know what you're doing are kept up to date.

PISCES (Feb. 20 - Mar 20)
Today's most powerful planetary patterns arouse your secret feelings. You must realise that some of your dreams can be very expensive to implement. But dreaming of course is free! You'll face questions when somebody expects you to back up your words with actions.

Officials attribute it to increased number of tests, zone's contribution to total B'luru cases stands at 12%

IFFATH FATHIMA @Bengaluru

SOUTH and West zones in Bengaluru are continuing to record a high number of Covid-19 cases followed by the East zone, but over the last week, Bommanahalli zone too has been witnessing a spike. The contribution of the zone to the overall positive cases in Bengaluru has gone up from 11 per cent on August 1 to 17 per cent on August 6, which was the second-highest after the West zone at 27%. The officials attributed it to increased testing in the zone.

Till mid-July, Bommanahalli zone constituted 8 per cent of the cases, but it increased to 10 per cent and this month, the average of last six days is 12 per cent. From July 31 to August 6, the zone recorded 1,717 positive cases, officials said.

Zonal Joint Commissioner S Ramkrishna told TNIE, "The increase in cases over the last week is due to a higher number of tests being conducted. Initially, we were conducting 500-700 tests per day, but now it has gone up to 2,000 samples. We have identified some spots in the 16 wards where we are setting up camps and conducting free tests. If the numbers are high, it is a good sign as we are identifying positive cases at early stages. Eventually, the spread of the infection will reduce."

Till now, the zone has recorded 5,857 cases. Of them, 3,057 are active, 2,705 discharges and 95 deaths.

K M Gangadhar, an epidemiologist from BBMP, who is looking after Bommanahalli zone, said, "The spread of infection in the zone is less. Last week, we saw many cases and we are working on reducing them by creating awareness. The zone has many slum areas from where cases are being reported. The maximum number of cases are from Singasandra ward, which is near Tamil Nadu and Karnataka border and many returnees from Tamil Nadu are staying there, leading to the spurt. Also, the ward is densely populated with a population of 1,80,000. Rest of the cases are from Bommanhalli, Arakere and Begur wards. We are identifying people with comorbidties and those at early stages of Covid-19 by using oximeters and conducting door-to-door surveys."

Captain P Mannivanan, Special Officer, Bommanhalli Zone, said, "The high numbers are because of more testing. However, the positivity rate is much lower than South and West zones."

BSY, Siddu doing well at hospital; Yathindra tests +ve

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Bengaluru

CHIEF Minister BS Yediyurappa and former chief minister and opposition leader in the Assembly Siddaramaiah, who are undergoing treatment at a private hospital in Bengaluru, are responding well to treatment.

"Yediyurappa continues to be stable since his admission on August 2. He is responding well to the treatment. His vital parameters are within normal limits. He is comfortable and attending to his duties from his room. Our team of specialists is monitoring him closely," said a statement issued by Manipal Hospital in Bengaluru. The chief minister is closely monitoring the flood situation across the state and also the fight against the Covid-19 pandemic from his hospital room.

Opposition leader Siddaramaiah was admitted to the same hospital on Monday after he was tested positive for Covid-19. "He is clinically stable and responding to treatment. He is comfortable and his appetite has improved. Our team of experts will continue to monitor him closely," the statement from the hospital said.

Siddaramaiah's son and Congress MLA from the Varuna Assembly constituency Dr Yathindra Siddaramaiah tested positive for Covid on Friday. Confirming that he is positive, the MLA, a medical doctor himself, took to the social media platform to send out a message to his followers. "I request all those who came in contact with me over the last few days to quarantine themselves and take precautions," he tweeted.

COVID WATCH

ADMISSIONS ONLY VIA ONLINE SYSTEM

Bengaluru: With many patients being referred to Bengaluru hospitals with just physical slips, hospitals are finding it hard to accept referrals from the Covid Hospital Bed Management System. The Health and Family Welfare department has now made it mandatory for all referrals, admissions and discharges to happen only via CHBMS. It is also decided to admit patients referred by districts under the government quota in Bengaluru hospitals. Only the deputy commissioner and additional deputy commissioner of districts are authorised to send the referrals to the BBMP special commissioner, who will then book beds through CHBMS. ENS

Happy news in tough times: 13 firms hire 59 candidates

ASHWINI M SRIPAD @Bengaluru

IN these times of Covid crisis when majority of establishments are firing their existing staff, 13 companies in the state have hired new employees. Over the last couple of weeks, 59 candidates, including those who have returned from other countries to the state, have got jobs with the help of the Karnataka Skill Development Corporation's job portal (https://skillconnect.kaushalkar.com) that was launched last month. The initiative by the state is the first in the country.

They said that 53 companies had registered with them and of them, 13 participated in the online job mela, organised in the second week of July. In all, 938 candidates too had registered on the portal with their educational qualification, work experience and other details. Of them, 59 were hired by the 13 companies, which are from hotel, healthcare and large-scale industries. The department had shortlisted candidates based on the companies' requirements, making the hiring easy. The new employees who have received their employment letters have already started working from home, the officials said.

Also, hiring of 863 people is at different stages. Some companies are doing physical verification of candidates, while others have hired after conducting online interviews. Some candidates have sought time to join work, officials said.

The state government now plans to upgrade the portal and make it on par with private job websites like naukri.com. The companies will still be required to notify vacancies, but now it will be easy as it is online.

Pvt hosp demands ₹13L to release patient's body

RANJANI MADHAVAN @Bengaluru

AFTER Covid-19 felled 74-year-old Shaik Adam on Thursday, his family members were in for a shock when they were presented with a bill of Rs 13,54,337 by Fortis Hospital, Bannerghatta Road. They had already paid Rs 6,55,000, but the hospital refused to release the body till the remainder was paid, the family alleged.

As per the government-capped rates, an ICU patient can be charged a maximum of Rs 25,000 per day. As Adam was in ICU for 22 days, the bill should have been Rs 5,50,000.

In a call recording, the patient's son, Imran, tells hospital administrator Dr Praveen Wali, "I had hoped that Fortis with such a big name will do good and Dr Praveen will help but you are behind the cheque only." The doctor responds, "This is a company. I also get a salary. Don't pay now. Give a declaration saying you don't have the entire amount now and you will settle the bill later and give a blank cheque without your signature on it."

Imran told TNIE, "We did not give the cheque. My father only had symptoms of cough when he tested positive and got admitted. But they put him on a ventilator from the second day and he passed away at 5.30 pm on Thursday. How can we afford Rs 13 lakh?"

Then, volunteers from NGO Mercy Mission spoke to the hospital and called it out for overcharging. The body was released on Friday morning.

Hospital denies charges

In a statement, Fortis Hospital said that Shaik Adam was brought in on July 14 with a severe acute respiratory distress syndrome and pneumonia. He was put on a ventilator from July 15, for the next 21 days. "Along with severe Covid and pneumonia, he had multiple organ dysfunction as well and was undergoing treatment for the same at the hospital which is exclusive of the price cap set out by the government. We are strictly adhering to the price cap set by the government and all charges in the bill are in strict accordance with their directive," it said.

"The family has paid only half of the billed amount; the balance is outstanding. Only as an assurance against the outstanding amount, the hospital collected a declaration letter which was voluntarily given. The allegations that the body was forcibly withheld for non-payment of bills are totally false," it said.

As cases rise, Dharwad ups bed capacity

ARUNKUMAR HURALIMATH
@Hubballi

IN a bid to accommodate the increasing number of Covid-19 patients in Dharwad district, the administration has decided to increase bed capacity across hospitals in Hubballi and Dharwad.

The district has been reporting nearly 200 new cases daily, which have crossed 5,300 in total, with more than 2,300 active cases getting treated at government and private hospitals, Covid Care Centres, and in home isolation. The district administration also began Rapid Antigen Tests.

According to the Health Department, around 2,250 beds are being used to treat Covid-19 patients in the district. To treat symptomatic patients, there are 750 beds in both government and private hospitals where around 250 beds are vacant, which will be used to admit new patients. To treat asymptomatic patients, the administration has identified 1,500 beds in various Ayurveda hospitals, hostels and the Deshpande Foundation centre, where 350 beds are occupied, and nearly 1,000 are vacant.

The Deshpande Foundation has handed over one of its centres with a capacity of 800 beds, to be converted into a Covid Care Centre, where 140 beds have been occupied.

Reason to smile? Recovery up, mortality down

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Bengaluru

KARNATAKA'S caseload once again went through the 6,000-mark on Friday, as 6,670 Covid-19 positive cases were added to the State's tally, which now stands at 1,64,924. The number of discharged patients too dropped to 3,951, after five days of a high number of discharges.

The recovery rate is continuously improving, and stands at 51.07 per cent on Friday. Karnataka saw over 4,000 discharges daily on August 2 and 3, a record 6,777 discharges on August 4, and over 5,000 discharges on August 5 and 6. The total number of discharged patients in Karnataka is now 84,232.

The number of active cases, too, increased from 75,068 on Thursday to 77,686, but the state remains at third position after Maharashtra (1,45,582 active cases) and Andhra Pradesh (84,654), after briefly touching second position.

Karnataka's positivity rate -- the number of patients testing positive per 100 tests – has been consistently rising over the past month. It is now 10.15, up from 3.32 on July 5.

The state's mortality rate, however, continues to drop and now stands at 1.81 per cent. An addition of 101 deaths took the State's Covid-19 death toll to 2,998, with 22 alone added by Bengaluru Urban, whose death toll is 1,200 — which is 40.02 per cent of the State's toll.

In Bengaluru, 2,147 additional cases were recorded, with the total number of discharged patients at 35,063, and total number of active cases at 33,308.

After Bengaluru Urban, districts with big caseloads are Ballari (686), Belagavi (390), Kalaburgi (271), Dharwad (266), Udupi (246) and Mysuru (242).

Bengaluru Urban has been doing well with recovery rate at 50.3 per cent, and had dropped last month to 30 per cent. However, Bengaluru Urban's positivity rate stands at 22.2 per cent, the second highest after Bengaluru Rural at 22.8 per cent.

The number of Covid tests conducted daily in the past three days has increased, with the state conducting more than 40,000 tests. On August 3, it was 42,458, on August 5 it was 43,638 and on August 6 was 48,421. On Friday, it was 43,553. This places Karnataka at eighth position in terms of tests per million, with Delhi topping the list with 66,872 cases, while Karnataka is 25,864.

Double whammy: Experts warn of monsoon diseases amid pandemic

CHETANA BELAGERE @Bengaluru

WITH torrential downpour and landslides being reported amid the pandemic across many districts in Karnataka, epidemiologists and public health experts fear rise in Covid-19 cases. They urge officials to take extra precautions and not to ignore the danger of an outbreak of other communicable and vector-borne diseases.

"Floods result in extreme hardships, often resulting in congregations of the displaced population. In addition to the risk of other communicable diseases, there is a higher risk of transfer of Covid-19 infection in closed spaces with many people in close contact. Although difficult, it is important to ensure humanitarian aid also includes the provision of masks," said Dr Giridhara R Babu, senior epidemiologist and advisor to Covid-19 technical committee in the State.

Heavy rainfall leads to flooding of homes in Belagavi district's Annapoorneshwari Nagar, on Thursday | ASHISHKRISHNA HP

According to public health experts, the virus complicates preparedness efforts amid concerns it could spread within crowded shelter homes with zero social distancing.

"Floods can give rise to many public health issues. Overflowing drains and sewage water can lead to increased incidence of water-borne diseases like Hepatitis A, typhoid, leptospirosis and cholera. Vector-borne diseases like malaria, dengue and chikungunya can go up. Children and the elderly are more vulnerable," Dr Sylvia Karpagam, public health activist, said.

"The Covid pandemic as well as flooding require good public health systems, preventive measures and health education. In the absence of these, communities are very vulnerable to adverse consequences of both and face dual risk," Sylvia said.

Meanwhile, experts fear that testing in these regions might come down drastically as the attention of the district incharge officers would now shift to handling flood situations. They warn that the relief measures need to happen with the pandemic in mind. "It is a very difficult time. Tests should continue in these districts too amid the flood-like situation. If the number of tests reduce, then there might be a sudden spike in mortality rates," said a senior epidemiologist.

Experts say officials should impose new rules to protect people now. They should screen people before they are allowed inside shelter homes, separate them if they are symptomatic, do antigen tests, ensure social distancing and limit each space to fewer than 30-50 people.

Revenue Minister tours coastal districts, says effort on to avert disasters due to heavy rainfall

Revenue Minister R Ashoka at Padubidri seashore in Udupi district on Friday | EXPRESS

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Udupi

ELEVEN districts in the state will be allocated ₹5 crore each in addition to the funds already sanctioned to tackle rain havoc, Revenue Minister R Ashoka said here on Friday.

After chairing a meeting to review the preparation for rain-related problems, he told reporters that Uttara Kannada, Chikkamagaluru, Shivamogga, Haveri, Hassan, Mysuru, Chamarajanagara, Dharwad, Kodagu, Dakshina Kannada and Udupi districts will get an additional ₹5 crore each.

He said he was on touring Udupi, Uttara Kannada and Dakshina Kannada districts to assess the preparedness of officials to tackle rain woes, as the focus of the government is to avert any rain-related mishaps. "Instead of assessing the situation after a disaster occurs, ensuring proper remedies in advance is the right way," Ashoka said.

He added that the priest's family in Kodagu that went missing due to a massive landslide on Thursday, was advised by officials earlier to relocate to a safer place, but had not agreed.

Ashoka said he has instructed officials to ensure that those living in low-lying, flood-prone areas and on river banks are given shelter at rescue camps set up in nearby school and college buildings.

The people accommodated in such camps will be provided food, water and medicines, and officials should ensure that nobody suffers, he said. The fire and emergency services department has been allotted ₹20 crore to procure equipment to tackle flood fury across the state.

Along with the government, we should also stand with the affected people. Government should constitute teams and work towards providing relief. The state government should put pressure on the Union government and get financial aid from them — Siddaramaiah, Opposition leader

Oppn asks Centre to release funds for State

The Congress and JDS on Friday demanded the Centre to release funds to the State in order help those hit by the heavy rain and floods in Karnataka. On Thursday, Chief Minister B S Yediyurappa had directed the officials to provide Rs 10,000 financial assistance to families affected by the heavy rain. Former PM H D Deve Gowda said, "It's unfortunate that the monsoon fury is causing damage. Along with the government, we should also stand with the affected people. Government should constitute teams and work towards providing relief. The state government should put pressure on the Union government and get financial aid from them." Congress leader Siddaramaiah too urged the Centre to release funds to state. Former CM H D Kumaraswamy, in a series of tweets, urged the state government to take up relief and rescue operations on a war-footing basis. "Officials must camp in flood affected areas, supervise relief and rescue works, and boost people's confidence," he said.

Go ahead with work, don't wait for nod: CM to CS

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Bengaluru:

CHIEF Minister BS Yediyurappa, who is currently undergoing treatment at a private hospital in Bengaluru after testing positive for Covid-19, on Friday directed Chief Secretary TM Vijay Bhaskar to proceed with emergency works without waiting for his approval.

Yediyurappa spoke to Bhaskar over telephone and took stock of the flood situation in the state. He also called Kodagu district in-charge minister V Somanna and expressed concern over the landslide in Talacauvery. "He enquired about the missing priest and his family members and instructed officials to carry out search operations," said a statement from the Chief Minister's Office. Five persons, including the temple priest and his family members, are missing after a massive landslide swept away their home in Kodagu district in the early hours of Thursday. Search operations by the National Disaster Response Force (NDRF) team are hampered due to heavy rain and landslides.

Meanwhile, on the Chief Minister's directions, district in-charge ministers rushed to rain-hit areas to monitor rescue and relief operations. Medical Education Minister Dr K Sudhakar said that 17 districts are receiving heavy rain over the past few days and the Chief Minister is constantly monitoring the situation and ensuring that relief measures are taken.

"The CM is giving necessary instructions to ministers and officers and the government is effectively tackling the flood situation," he said in Chikkaballapura.

HC quashes criminal trial of 9 foreign Tablighi men

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Bengaluru

The High Court has quashed criminal proceedings against nine foreign members of Tablighi Jamaat, but declined to quash similar proceedings against seven of their Indian counterparts, in cases registered against them by the Tumakuru police.

They were booked for participating in a religious congregation, and in case of foreigners, on e-tourist Visas and spreading Covid.

In an order passed on Wednesday, Justice Krishna S Dixit directed the Foreigners Regional Registration Office (FRRO) to issue exit permits to the foreign Tablighi members if they are not required for any other case, and after they pay the fine and give an undertaking that they will not visit India within the next 10 years.

The foreigners include four from South Africa, three from Gambia and one each from Indonesia and the USA.

Judge Dixit made it clear that quashing the proceedings against the accused foreigners should not be construed as extending their Visas, or as dilution of the case against other petitioners who are accused for offences punishable under the Foreigners Act, 1946, IPC, Epidemic Diseases Act and other enactments.

Pending GST dues discussed

ENS @ Bengaluru

STATE'S pending dues of ₹13,763 crore was discussed, and is likely to be taken up at the next meeting, Home Minister Basavaraj Bommai said here on Friday, after participating in the National GST ministers' meeting.

The meeting was held via video conferencing under the leadership of GST convener and Bihar DyCM Sushil Modi.

The discussion focussed on how GST taxpayers' pendency of online refunds can be addressed, and that refunds pending beyond the stipulated time, at times for flimsy reasons, should be expedited. Over 2 lakh cases would be taken up and over ₹52,000 crore disbursed in refunds, said Bommai. The ministers spoke on simplification of the process of filing monthly returns. Now, heavy industries can file by the 24th of every month.

TWO AIR MISHAPS WITH MANY SIMILARITIES

Another accident was reported at Mangaluru airport 10 years ago when an Air India Express flight from Dubai crashed; only 8 survived the disaster

DHINESH KALLUNGAL @ T'Puram

THE mishap involving the Air India Express evacuation flight at the Kozhikode airport bears striking similarities with the accident at the Mangalore airport 10 years ago when an Air India Express flight from Dubai with 166 people on board, overshot the runway before bursting into flames. Just eight persons survived that crash.

Capt Zlatko Glusica and co-pilot Capt H S Ahluwalia of the Air India Express flight IX-812, who were quite familiar with the layout of the Mangalore airport, misjudged the length of the runway forcing them to make a last-ditch effort to get the plane airborne after they realised that they had landed way beyond the safe touchdown zone in the tabletop runway.

But on Friday, the pilots didn't attempt any such misadventure like trying to make the aircraft airborne after it overshot the tabletop runway at the Calicut airport. It is not clear at the moment whether it was a wise move by the former Indian Air Force (IAF) test pilot Captain D V Sathe and his co-pilot, which helped bring down the number of causalities. A crew member, who emerged from the ill-fated Air India Express flight, told airport authorities that the flight didn't try to land for sometime due to poor visibility and they attempted touchdown only after the visibility improved.

The flight also landed safely and it was while making a U-turn on the runway that the aircraft went out of control and veered off the surface, crashing against the compound wall and plunging down onto the road 35 feet below the tabletop runway. The aircraft split into two, nearly separating the cockpit from the fuselage and the pilots were taken out of the aircraft after breaking open the cockpit.

While the aircraft involved in the Mangalore mishap had caught fire soon after the accident, here the flight didn't burst into flames which also reduced the causalities. Since the flight landed almost safely, the speed was relatively low than the aircraft involved in the Mangalore accident where speed was very high as the pilots were trying make the aircraft airborne when they realised that it was going to crash. Aviation expert Jacob K Philip said, "Whether the pilots were trying to save the lives of passengers can be ascertained only after a detailed inquiry." But the background of the two accidents bear an uncanny similarity and the same airline's aircraft were involved in both the accidents.

Frantic kids among those in hospitals

ENS @Kozhikode

THE injured screaming out of pain, children searching for parents and others trying to figure out what has befallen them all of a sudden. This was the scene at half a dozen hospitals in Kozhikode when the deceased and injured passengers of ill-fated Air India Express flight IX 1344 were wheeled in on stretchers around 9.30pm.

The plane skidded off the tabletop runway while landing at Calicut International Airport at 7.40pm, fell on to a road below and broke into two on Friday night.

"We initially thought it was a minor incident. Then ambulances kept coming. Twenty-four people have been admitted here of whom five died," said a doctor at the casualty wing of Kozhikode Medical College Hospital.

"We didn't get time to figure out what had happened. Some kids were crying, asking for parents. Some lay unconscious..." said S Suresh Thampi, chief marketing officer of Baby Memorial Hospital in the city. The bodies of flight Cmdr Deepak Vasanth Sathe and Capt Akhilesh Kumar were kept at Aster Mims Hospital. "The body of a girl, who must around three-four years old, is here," said a public relations person at Aster Mims. A total of 33 injured passengers of the flight are under treatment at the hospital. The others are at Beach, Maitra, Iqra, Aster Pantheerankavu and Red Crescent Feroke hospitals.

KALASA-BANDURI

Centre quashes Goa's appeal to stay project

NAUSHAD BIJAPUR @Belagavi

The Union Jal Shakti ministry turned down the Goa govt's appeal to deny all permission from Central agencies for starting the Kalasa-Banduri project, until petitions filed in the Supreme Court with regard to the project are cleared.

Condemning the way the Centre snubbed the Goa government, Opposition leaders in Goa have urged CM Pramod Sawant to lodge a protest to prevent the diversion of Mahadayi river water. Criticising Sawant for not doing enough to prevent Karnataka from going ahead with the Kalasa-Banduri project, Goa Forward Party leader Vinod Palekar, said measures were taken earlier to prevent Karnataka from going ahead with work when Manohar Parrikar was Chief Minister. Sawant has not taken measures to protect the interests of Goa, he alleged.

Sources said the Centre wrote to the Goa CM on Thursday stating that Goa's request to halt permission to the Karnataka government was not tenable.

Landslides in Malnad

C'magaluru: Torrential rains lashing Malnad taluks led to landslides, power outages and crop loss on Friday. A house in Mudigere may collapse any moment, and residents have been moved. Bhadra river flowing over the Hebbale bridge cut off vehicular movement between Horanadu and Kalasa. A land slip occurred on the State Highway 106, while hill slips occurred at 11 areas on Charmadi Ghat Road.

Police officials visit the spot from where the girl was washed away

THE incident occurred at Ganjigatti village in Kalghatagi taluk late on Thursday afternoon. The mother watched helplessly as Shridevi Ganiger was swept away in the gushing water. A few villagers dived in to save the little girl, but in vain. A youth from the same village spotted her in the water but could not rescue her, villagers said.

Kalaghatagi tahsildar Ashok Shiggavi said people usually walk on the road beside the Hirekeri lake even when it is overflowing. "The lake is spread across 110 acres and is considered one of the biggest in the taluk. As soon as we received information, we reached the spot but even after 13 hours of search, there is no sign of the girl. The search will continue on Saturday," he said.

DC Nitesh Patil, Superintendent of Police Vartika Katiyar and others inspected the spot and visited the family of the victim on Friday morning. The DC took stock of the operations.

Basavaraj Sherewad, a relative of the victim, said the family members used to regularly deliver lunch to those working in the fields. Post lunchtime, the water level in the lake had risen due to rain. The current was strong and the girl could not hold on to her mother's hand, he said.

Overflowing water from the lake joins the Bedthi river which takes birth near Hubballi and goes on to join Gangavali river in Uttara Kannada.

Belagavi still flooded, Maha releases water

TRAFFIC movement on the Mysuru-Nanjangud highway, which connects Kerala and Tamil Nadu, is likely to be disrupted as 78,000 cusecs of water was released from Kabini dam on Friday, resulting in water-logging of the highway. With Kodagu district receiving incessant rains over the past four days and a substantial increase in inflow at the Krishna Raja Sagar (KRS) reservoir, Water Resources Department officials released 30,000 cusecs of water and the administration has a sounded a flood alert asking people living on the banks of the Cauvery river to move to safer places.

The heavy downpour has affected normal life in Mysuru , Mandya and Chamarajanagar districts. While Kodagu continued to be the worst-hit, the situation was equally bad in many districts, including Uttara Kannada, Shivamogga and Hassan.

Meanwhile, a flood-like situation continues to prevail in Belagavi district as the water level in Krishna river continued to rise after rains in neighbouring Maharashtra, which released water from its dams. Karnataka and Maharashtra have decided to depute senior officers, one from each state, to coordinate the release of water from all dams and rivers on both sides of the border to avoid flooding.

Search ops halted due to bad weather

THE search operation for five people missing in the landslide at Talacauvery was stymied by continuous downpour, flooded roads and minor landslides on the way to the spot. While the NDRF team has halted at Kashi Mutt in Talacauvery, it is unable to carry out search operations for those missing, including the chief priest of Talacauvery Temple Narayana Achar and his family.

MP Prathap Simha and district in-charge minister V Somanna visited the spot. "The search operation is delayed as roads are inaccessible, and earth movers cannot be taken in as Bhagamandala is submerged. The operation is likely to start tomorrow," confirmed Somanna.

With rain continuing to wreak havoc across Kodagu, the district will be on orange alert till August 11. Many places are cut off following floods, and five relief centres have been opened for the victims. Rapid Antigen Tests are being done on those sheltered at the centres.

The Harangi backwaters have left Kushalnagar, Tavarekere, Koppa, Hebbale and Kanive areas flooded, forcing residents to shift out.

CENTRE NEEDS TO DO MORE FOR THE ECONOMY'S RECOVERY

Indians are perhaps among the most optimistic people in the world. The Sensex surged 362 points on Thursday, banking on a debt forbearance plan for Indian corporates announced by the RBI; investors simply ignored the dire warning by the same central banker that the real economy was shrinking and shrinking fast. After plummeting to 25,981 points on March 23 due to Covid-19 just ahead of the nationwide lockdown that impacted economic activity, the benchmark Sensex has since boisterously kept rising except for the occasional hiccup and is now trading nearly 12,000 points higher, an increase of over 46%.

In sharp contrast, according to the RBI's statement, industrial production in India shrank by 57.6% in April and by 34.7% in May. The economy as a whole is likely to have shrunk by 20% or so in April-June 2020, according to economists. For the full year, the economy is expected to shrink by anything between 5-10%, among the highest in Asia. The real economy had been slowing down for quite some time even before Covid-19 hit India. Demand had been shrinking as unemployment rose. By December 2019, India's unemployment rate was already at a high of 7.6% as the country's growth engines sputtered. By April it had risen to 23.5%. Though things are better after the economy was unlocked, it's still at 7.7%. The services sector, the country's largest contributor to the economy, according to estimates based on the Purchasing Managers' Index, improved slightly to 34.2 in July from 33.7 in June. But it's still way less than the cut-off level of 50, anything below which indicates a contraction. Sectors like aviation, tourism, sports, leisure, entertainment and restaurant business remain severely crippled.

Hopes of a recovery hinge not only on an end to lockdowns, which may well continue as fresh waves of Covid cases crop in various parts of the country, but on efforts taken by the government to rehabilitate the economy. It has already taken some measures including increasing credit availability, but more needs to be done. A massive spending plan to build infrastructure that could boost both employment and have a knock-on effect on demand for industrial goods may well be the New Deal that the country needs to bank on.

NOT THE TIME FOR POLITICS IN ANDHRA

The Jagan Mohan Reddy government has taken several contentious decisions, none more so than three capitals for the state—executive in Vizag, legislative in Amaravati and judicial in Kurnool. With Governor Biswabhusan Harichandan giving the nod to the AP Decentralisation and Inclusive Development of All Regions Act and the Capital Region Development Authority (Repeal) Act, the executive decision has been taken to its logical conclusion. Nonetheless, it is not yet a fait accompli. The brain behind the ₹1.09 lakh crore dream capital Amaravati, TDP chief N Chandrababu Naidu, farmers who have given up their land for it and a few others have pinned their hopes on the judiciary in the belief that it will vindicate their stand—that a government is duty-bound to honour its commitments irrespective of the party in power.

The pros and cons of Amaravati and the three capitals have been debated extensively amid protests and a political drama of sorts in the legislature. For the record, the government says it abides by the agreement entered into with the farmers, that it will develop the region as promised and has also extended payment of annuity by five years. The moot question is whether it is compensation enough for the loss of their fertile land and assured dream of prized real estate in a new capital. This will, perhaps, be the critical issue on which the legal battle will be fought. Despite its far-reaching implications, the issue hasn't till date ignited regional passions nor has it become an emotive issue except, of course, in the Amaravati region since the farmers there are the first casualty of the three capital move. None other Naidu himself admitted it when he announced he would try to create awareness among the people.

The people want development and employment opportunities, hit hard as they are by the Covid-induced economic contraction. A dream capital is the last thing on their minds and neither is it feasible under the circumstances. Therein lies a lesson for Naidu. Instead of instigating the people to 'revolt', he ought to bat for the farmers to secure them a better deal.

The Sri Lanka parliamentary polls have weakened the multi-party Tamil National Alliance. This has made the post-poll revival of ethnic negotiations more complex

RAJAPAKSAS BECOME STRONGER, SPLIT TAMIL VOICES GET WEAKER

AMIT BANDRE

N SATHIYA MOORTHY
Distinguished Fellow and Head-Chennai Initiative, Observer Research Foundation

Wednesday's parliamentary polls held no surprises for Sri Lanka watchers. The election has ensured continuity along with political stability that the island nation got with the election of President Gotabaya Rajapaksa in November last. Sri Lanka needed stability for ensuring national security and economic revival, and ending the constitutional impasse in the wake of last year's Easter Sunday serial blasts and more recently the Covid-19 pandemic.

With strategic Tamil and Muslim allies, the ruling SLPP-led combine of Rajapaksas (President Gotabaya and Prime Minister Mahinda, a two-term President earlier) has won a two-thirds majority, or 151 seats (including the Speaker) out of a total of 225. Equally important, the poll has sounded the death knell for the nation's two oldest parties. The United National Party (UNP), Sri Lanka's GoP, lost badly to the breakaway SJB headed by ex-deputy Sajith Premadasa, son of former President Ranasinghe Premadasa who was slain by the LTTE. The UNP's long-time boss and three-time PM Ranil Wickremesinghe too could not make the grade.

The UNP's traditional rival, the Sri Lanka Freedom Party (SLFP), was weakened after the Rajapaksas walked out to found the SLPP. The party now won a single seat, from the Tamil North, the first in 40 years. The party's former President Maithripala Sirisena could win his parliamentary seat from his native Polonnaruwa district only by contesting on the Rajapaksa SLPP's 'Lotus Bud' symbol.

Indian concerns: Interestingly, Sri Lanka's immediate concerns are also those of neighbouring India's for its southern neighbour. The Sri Lankans have given themselves political stability after five years of failed experimentation with a patently unhappy wedding of inconvenience. The unsuccessful cohabitation between former president Sirisena and PM Wickremesinghe was also the main cause for the nation's multiple woes, barring Covid of course.

Before the Easter Sunday blasts last year, India had provided intelligence all through. Yet, New Delhi had to sit it out when the Sri Lankan establishment did not even send out an extra police constable to the streets on the fateful day, 21 April 2019. Inquiry commissions have since attributed it to the lack of communication between the top two in the government,

Even without it, Sri Lanka's economy was tottering, also due to the previous Rajapaksa regime's profligacy, leading to what amounted to a 'debt trap' involving China. The new government talked of containing the debts, but kept borrowing from China for even non-essential expenditure like building more expressways. But the Easter blasts hit the nation's tourism economy. Just when there were signs of revival, the pandemic struck.

India cannot afford a failed economy in its southern neighbourhood too for more reasons than one. Ahead of the polls, India committed itself to a $400 million currency-swap facility sought by the new regime in Sri Lanka. Their request for an additional $1.1 billion swap facility and three-year moratorium on around $900 million in loans are under continuing negotiations. So possibly is India's engagement with developing the Colombo Port Eastern Container Terminal. The previous government had signed a tripartite deal that also included Japan, but the current rulers are under pressure from labour groups and self-styled Sinhala-Buddhist supra-nationalists to rescind it.

> The Sri Lankans have given themselves political stability after five years of failed experimentation with a patently unhappy wedding of inconvenience. The unsuccessful cohabitation between former president Sirisena and PM Wickremesinghe was the main cause for many of the nation's woes

Baby and the bathwater: India has a more direct involvement in terms of the revival and possible implementation of the 13th Amendment to the island nation's Constitution, effected as far back 1987—or a version suited to the times. India's hopes of helping to find a peaceful conclusion to the ethnic strife did not bear fruit. After three decades of war and violence and the militarily forced exit of the LTTE, 13-A is still the only valid document for the nation's Tamil minority to cling on to.

Owing to India's later-day disposition to the LTTE, there are those in Sri Lanka's Tamil community and polity who have thrown the baby with the bathwater. The parliamentary polls have weakened the multi-party Tamil National Alliance (TNA), with a much lower 10 MPs. Their voice is not the 'sole authorised and authoritative voice' of a majority of Tamils anymore. Two hard-line Tamil nationalist parties have won three seats between them: Former Supreme Court judge C V Wigneswaran has won a lone seat for the Tamil People's Alliance (TPA) and Gajendra Kumar Ponnambalam's Tamil National People's Front (TNPF) has got two. Three pro-Rajapaksa Tamil parties in the North and the East have won a total of four seats.

This has made the post-poll revival of ethnic negotiations more complex and uncertain. It has also come in the midst of the Rajapaksas' eagerness to fast-track other promised 'constitutional reforms' on restoring executive power, haphazardly taken away under the predecessor regime's 19th Amendment, that too when the iron is still hot.

Linked to the political solution for the ethnic issue is the UNHRC resolution on a war crimes probe that will come up for a crucial vote in March next year. Nearer home, civil society is concerned about the possible return of authoritarianism, securitisation and worse—but that is for the people to vote upon, when the much-delayed elections to the nine Provincial Councils are held sooner than later.

NEP: THE MIDAS TOUCH GOLD MINE

S VAIDHYASUBRAMANIAM
Vice-Chancellor, SASTRA Deemed University

The recently announced new National Education Policy (NEP) resounds with sound and substance, reminding us of the Pokhran moment. This EduPokhran is a potent intellectual weapon that can propel India's march in the global eduscape. Visionary policies like these lay down education highways for high-speed growth. The key to a successful journey lies in the policy and implementation pathway that needs to be free of unnecessary roadblocks, speed breakers and 'toll booths'.

As articulated by PM Narendra Modi, the NEP has successfully managed to polish the rough contours of policymaking by dismissing the 'one size fits all' model to accommodate emerging models of teaching and learning from KG to 12 to PhD with a MIDAS golden touch of Modularity, Interdisciplinarity, Diversity, Accessibility and Sustainability. This is through a gentle touch, different from the dreaded squeeze that the education ecosystem was hitherto confronted with. Here are some major relief and reform announcements spanning the entire education value chain along with certain suggestive prescriptions.

New-age school education: The learning life cycle of school-going kids is poised for a transformational 5+3+3+4 punctuated by fun, arts, skills, mother-tongue exposure, modularity and academic curriculum, minus heavy school bags. The multilingual formula provides scope for various state-driven policies for mutual mobility of language teachers and students in the true spirit of language diversity and national unity. The assessment and vertical school level mobility is all set for a merry-go-round journey with ups and downs having different levels of joy and no sorrow. The gross deviance from rote rigour to fine vigour is certainly a boon for the future school-going generations. The triple balance between the body, mind and soul ensures the four-dimensional growth of the five senses to ensure a perfect six-pack learning outcome with prescriptive and interdisciplinary choices. There is also a need to assess and grade schools based on student learning outcomes to ensure that school development coexists with students. High-performing schools need to be incentivised and encouraged with more autonomy and support to propel them into uncharted territories as followed by the schooling system of advanced economies. Such a new-age school education policy provides the much-needed fertility for India's intellectual produce.

Acharya Devo Bhava: The collateral policy shift in teacher education ensures a good value chain linkage, which is essential considering the important role of teachers in school education. The phasing out of standalone teacher education institutions and the four-year integrated B.Ed. programmes will hopefully bring to an end the sorry saga of the existing antiquated and outdated teacher education policy vehicle. There is a need to integrate teacher education with attractive career incentive mechanisms and restore the glory of the noble profession of teaching. In fact, the author, while submitting his comments for the NEP, called for 100% I-T exemption for teachers who submit annual self-attested academic audits that cover the four dimensions of development—self, syllabus, school and society, with wrongful submission leading to penalty and job loss. Still a worthy proposition to pursue in the spirit of 'Acharya Devo Bhava'.

> Visionary policies like the NEP lay down education highways for high-speed growth. The key to a successful journey lies in the policy and implementation pathway that needs to be free from unnecessary roadblocks

HigherEd gets taller: Higher education, the catalytic engine with occasional cataclysmic potential, is up for complete revamp. The gradual integration of statutory bodies like the UGC, AICTE, NCTE, etc., into a Higher Educational Council of India (HECI) is a welcome wedding provided there are enough invitees to the muhurat stage. The HECI must have a broad representation not only from all Central and state agencies, but also from private institutions, industry and civil societies. The HECI must recognise that there are thinkers and doers outside the existing orbit of policy-making, which has its own exclusivity. The characterisation of higher educational institutions into three types with inbuilt interdisciplinarity and modularity through academic innovations and diversity through technology-enabled access is a boon that needs to be granted when asked for. Moving forward, higher education institutions shall emerge as differentiators and not just aggregators and for this transformational shift, the HECI must be fuelling change agents and not gruelling approval engines. The shift in higher education to taller heights of governance, standards, funding and accreditation needs a broader policy outlook, failing which the intended objectives may fall flat.

Research excellence: The NEP's research encouragement through the NSF-type National Research Foundation is symptomatic of equal treatment to all institutions; one hopes that this symptom continues on the field. Recognising the fact there is good amount of research happening in private higher educational institutions, funding should flow outside the conventional portals of public institutions that have so far been receiving all the required encouragement to make the research funding diversity a big plus. The NEP also mentions tax incentives raising the hopes of the revival of the accelerated tax exemption given by the Ministry of Finance to corporate donors who provide the much-needed financial support for research institutions.

I am reminded of Nani Palkhivala who once said, and I twist a little—"Five-year governments in four-year action with three-year tenured bureaucrats having two-year targets and one-year reviews will rely on the common man to solve their day-to-day problems." Hope it doesn't happen for education, as the MIDAS touch of NEP has left its fingerprints in all educational spheres and dimensions. It is for the policymakers and implementing agencies to harvest this gold mine of opportunities.

Stopping landslides

A major landslide has taken place in Munnar due to heavy rains and at least 10 people have died. This tragic situation happens every year during the monsoon. Each time, we are shocked for a few days but forget about it afterwards. Authorities must take long-term action to reduce the damage caused by these landslides.

Haven't learnt from past

The fire at Shrey hospital in Ahmedabad is a grim reminder that we haven't learnt any lessons from similar tragedies in the past. It seems the hospital had not renewed its fire department NOC for several years. This shows how corrupt officials are playing havoc with patients' lives.
P G Menon, Chennai

Comparison not correct

Comparing the struggle for the Ram Janmabhoomi to the fight for freedom as PM Narendra Modi has done does not seem proper. The latter was a relentless and collective fight against imperialistic rule while the struggle for the Janmabhoomi was essentially a dispute between two communities.
Sudhakar Cherukunnu, Kannur

Pak's mischievous map

With some of India's neighbours laying claim on our territories, Pakistan does not seem to want to lag behind and has come out with a new map. Mischievous is its reinvented claim to Junagadh in Gujarat, whose matter had been settled long ago. The rogue nation still has not mended its ways.
Seshagiri Row Karry, Hyderabad

CMO and gold smuggling

There is no doubt that the NIA is systematically inching its way towards establishing the involvement of the CMO in the gold smuggling case. The reach and power of former principal secretary Sivasankar was so great that he doesn't seem to have been answerable even to the chief minister.

Humane touch needed

This is with reference to On new role for cops in Kerala's Covid fight (Aug 7). As the editorial rightly points out, this is not a law-and-order problem; it must be dealt with a humane touch. In the initial stages, there were a lot of complaints about police excesses. The police and health departments should work in tandem to tame the contagion.
M Haneef, Kottayam

Cong can't take credit

This is with reference to Three hundred and one ways to Ram Rajya (Aug 7). As pointed out, the Congress cannot claim credit for the temple's construction. Whatever party leaders such as Priyanka Gandhi Vadra may say or tweet, the Congress will remain a villain in this political story of Ramayan.
Hemanth Bhide, Mangaluru

Better salaries for teachers

This is with reference to NEP and education for the future (Aug 7). The author has touched upon some pragmatic issues in the implementation of the NEP. Efforts have to be made to attract the best and brightest in the country to take up teaching and better salaries must be paid. Only then will we be able to bring in professionalism.
C Ghanshyam, Visakhapatnam

Better infra needed

The author has highlighted the issues over the implementation of Early Childhood Care and Learning. There is a need for better infrastructure, well-trained caretakers and qualified teachers. The NEP seems more oriented to the private sector. Quality and affordability of education must be the guiding parameters for policymakers.
Chilaka Venkateswarlu, Chennai

Medium of instruction

The freedom to choose the language of instruction in schools should be given to parents. The government should provide such an option to them, while ensuring schools for all languages of instruction are affordable.

NEP will usher in a 'new Bharat', says secy

Amit Khare says egalitarian new policy will help reduce elitism in education, encourage students to be job creators

THE National Education Policy's focus would be on teaching and learning and not just on degrees, said Higher Education secretary Amit Khare in a conversation with Prabhu Chawla*, Editorial Director, The New Indian Express, and author and senior journalist* Kaveree Bamzai on TNIE's Expressions, a series of live web casts with people who matter.

Calling it an egalitarian policy, he said it would help reduce elitism in education. "It is exactly the other way round. By having more control of us, we are supporting more elitism. By having a more decentralised and autonomous approach, it will lead to 'Bharat' rather than having a focus on India," Khare said on a query whether the policy will encourage more of India and less of 'Bharat'.

Asked what kind of new Indian is there likely to emerge, following this policy, Khare said one who is 'grounded yet with global outlook'.

The bigger success of the policy would be to change the mindset of people and encourage students to be job creators and not job seekers alone, said Khare. The flexibility of the policy may work to the potential of people choosing two professions.

On the topic of dissent and dissatisfaction at educational institutions, Khare said, "Dissatisfaction is often because of the straightjacket system. The new system will encourage students to learn as per their desire... dissent is not to be taken as something against the system. Different stakeholders have different systems. The beauty is to harmonise it."

Regarding the implementation challenges, Khare said the implementation would be gradual so that students can adapt to change. "We do not want to disrupt the educational system. We are taking the implementation challenge to further fine-tune the policies."

"We have made a certain plan. The policy has various parts. The recommendations are further broken down into sub-recommendation. Educational sector is not linear. There is tremendous diversity in terms of institutions. The roadmap is clear," he added.

Implementation is easier with the proper framing of the national curriculum. "The first step would be to make the framework. Experts will make the framework. Once the framework is ready, the next step is to introduce the strategies," he added. "We want the best practices but without losing sight of the reality..Ideally all colleges should be autonomous... some colleges are small. So the policy has taken a mid-path. While some are autonomous, others have to work towards their autonomy."

"There is also a very important recommendation have a single regulator instead of having multiple regulators..there is a single regulator. That Bill is being drafted. By end of September, we will put it in the public domain for the stakeholders to give their comment. Then we can have the Higher Education Commission...multiple educators are reduced. Higher Education Commission is based on self-disclosures and not on inspection of the project," he added.

There would be punishment in case of violations, said Khare. Institutions should worry more about the standard of education and less about inspection, he asserted.

Media cannot be gagged: Govt to SC

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New Delhi

THE Centre on Friday defended the media's right to report facts and freedom of citizens to know affairs of respective sections of the society while responding to a petition filed in the Supreme Court seeking action against media reports "spreading hatred" over the Nizamuddin Markaz congregation of Tablighi Jamaat.

The Ministry of Information and Broadcasting, in an affidavit, informed the top court that it cannot gag the media from reporting on the Jamaat issue.

> A blanket gag order cannot be passed against media reportage, as this could harm the freedom of speech
> I&B Ministry in an affidavit

The Centre claimed that steps have already been taken to prevent any dissemination of false and provocative information, and a blanket gag order cannot be passed against media reportage, as this could harm the freedom of speech and expression and press freedom.

"The Ministry has also taken suitable action against violation of programme codes, including issuance of advisory, warning, running an apology scroll, or taking a channel off air for a specific time period... it is submitted that news reports based on facts cannot be censured under Article 19 (2) of the Constitution," the affidavit stated.

During the hearing, the bench orally observed that the governments in the country did not act until the court directed them.

Advocate Dushyant Dave submitted before the bench regarding news reports on the Jamaat event and insisted that only the government can take action and not the self-regulating bodies governing the media.

With sedition charges dropped, Gehlot tries to pacify Pilot camp

RAJESH ASNANI @ Jaipur

CALL it a softening of CM Ashok Gehlot's stance or legal tactic vis-a-vis Sachin Pilot-led Congress rebels; there is much to read into dropping of sedition charges by the Special Operations Group (SOG) over horse-trading of MLAs.

The sedition charges were contained in three FIRs that SOG had filed which involved the alleged toppling of the Gehlot government.

Reacting to the SOG move, state BJP chief Satish Poonia said: "The CM's intention has now been exposed as it is clear that they hatched a conspiracy against their own MLAs to intimidate the Independents and small party MLAs, in the name of SOG and ACB."

The state police's SOG had originally slapped sedition charges against two rebel Congress MLAs – Bhanwarlal Sharma and Vishvendra Singh – and later against Union minister Gajendra Singh Shekhawat after three audio tapes were leaked in mid-July.

The dropping of the charge, reportedly on legal advice, is being seen as a move to pacify the Pilot camp. Bhanwarlal Sharma, who was named in the FIR, had filed a petition before the Rajasthan High Court to either quash the FIR or transfer it to the NIA. Had the NIA got the case, it would have meant the Gehlot government having little control over the probe.

Experts believe the Gehlot government was worried about the outcome of Sharma's petition. The possibility of NIA getting hold of the probe weighed heavy on the state government. Sharma's petition could become infructuous if the sedition charges are dropped.

INDIA RECORDS HIGHEST SINGLE-DAY SPIKE

People being offered 'kaddha' in Bikaner on Friday to strengthen immunity system in fighting against Covid-19 | PTI

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New Delhi

INDIA registered its sharpest surge of 62,538 new Covid-19 cases overnight as it crossed yet another grim milestone of recording over 2 million confirmed cases of the infectious disease.

According to the Union Ministry of Health and Family Welfare figures, 13,78,105 of the 20,27,074 official cases have recovered, while the country has 6,07,384 active cases at present.

This was the ninth day in a row that the Covid-19 tally rose by more than 50,000 and the death toll climbed to 41,585 with 886 people succumbing to the infection in a 24-hour period.

There were also 6,39,042 Covid-19 tests conducted across states on Thursday which means that the test positivity rate in the country was 9.7 per cent — nearly double the WHO recommended TPR of under 5 per cent to control the pandemic.

Maharashtra recorded its highest single-day spike of 11,514 and its total tally now stands at 4,79,779. It has a whopping 1,46,612 active cases. The state also reported 316 deaths related to the infection in a day taking the total death count to 16,792. Andhra Pradesh with the second-highest active cases — at 82,166 — is inching closer to 2,00,000-mark. It added more than 10,000 fresh cases for a second day in a row on Thursday.

After a decline in cases, Delhi, too, saw a marginal rise in fresh cases with 1,299 new cases getting detected on Thursday. The state's total number of active cases which had fallen under 10,000 after several weeks, has again jumped to 10,348.

Tamil Nadu which is at the second spot in terms of total confirmed cases reported 5,684 fresh cases in a 24-hour window. Uttar Pradesh where the testing has risen significantly over the last few weeks reported 4,586 new cases getting detected in a day.

Maharashtra continues to record most cases

Maharashtra recorded its highest single-day spike of 11,514 and its total tally now stands at 4,79,779. The state also reported 316 deaths related to the infection in a day taking the total death count to 16,792.

'Acute farming heightens pandemic risk'

NEW DELHI: Covid-19 pandemic triggered by animal-origin coronavirus brought to focus zoonotic diseases and now, a nature study finds that land-use change — conversion of natural habitats to agricultural or urban ecosystems — is widely recognised to influence the risk and emergence of zoonotic disease in humans.

'Zoonotic host diversity increases in human-dominated ecosystems' led by researchers from the University College London's Centre for Biodiversity & Environment Research suggested that global changes in the mode and the intensity of land use are creating expanding hazardous interfaces between people, livestock and wildlife reservoirs of zoonotic disease. The team analysed 6,801 ecological assemblages and 376 host species worldwide, controlling for research effort, and showed that land use has global and systematic effects on local zoonotic host communities.

"When we convert natural habitats to our uses, we inadvertently increase the probability of transmission of zoonotic infectious diseases, which are caused by pathogens that can jump from animals to humans," said Rory Gibb, one of the authors.

It has been suggested that habitat disturbance might cause predictable changes in the local diversity and taxonomic composition of potential reservoir hosts. ENS

MP POLICE ACTION

Traders celebrating temple slapped, two officials shunted

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Bhopal

A joint collector and a police official were removed from their posts over the alleged beating and detention of some traders who were bursting crackers in MP's Khargone district to celebrate the Ram Temple bhoomi pujan.

Khargone district joint collector Abhishek Gahlot and sub divisional police officer Gladwin Edwardkar were transferred to the state secretariat and the police headquarters in Bhopal on Thursday night after the BJP, VHP and trader outfits protested in Khargone town.

Videos of a trader being beaten by policemen over bursting crackers in Khargone's Saraffa Bazar area had gone viral on social media. According to sources in Khargone police, the traders were bursting crackers on Wednesday out in the open in a communally sensitive area which could have created law and order problems.

BJP general secretary Kailash Vijayvargiya had tweeted one of the videos in which cops were seen slapping a trader. He had also questioned the Wednesday's police action. Local BJP MP Gajendra Singh Patel, who was among those who participated in the protests on Thursday, had also questioned the police action.

OCI cardholders allowed to visit India

NEW DELHI: The Union Ministry of Home Affairs on Friday issued new guidelines for Overseas Citizenship of India (OCI) cardholders from the US, UK, German and France, allowing them to visit the country, in accordance with the "air bubble" arrangements India has signed with these countries.

Other foreigners from these countries have also been allowed to avail Indian visa facility for business, medical and employment purposes. Indian citizens have also been allowed to travel to these four countries on any type of visa, according to a notification issued by MHA.

"The Ministry of Home Affairs has permitted to enter India OCI cardholders who belong to countries with which 'air bubble' arrangements have been finalised by Ministry of Civil Aviation," a home ministry spokesperson said.

"Any Indian national holding any type of valid visa of such countries may be permitted to travel to the country concerned provided there is no travel restriction for entry of Indian nationals in that country. It would be for the airlines concerned to ensure that there is no travel restriction for Indian nationals to enter the country concerned with the particular visa category before the issue of tickets/ boarding pass to the Indian passenger," stated the notification. ENS

Bengal Muslims cremate their Hindu neighbour

PRANAB MONDAL @ Kolkata

IN an example of communal harmony and humanity, Muslim neighbours of a Hindu man helped perform his last rites in Jhargram district of West Bengal on Thursday.

The 62-year-old man died after suffering a cardiac arrest shortly after being refused treatment by a doctor at local health centre as he had not gone through a Covid-19 test. From gathering wood for the funeral to carrying the body to the crematorium, the neighbours helped his family perform all rituals.

Jugal Das was taken to Binpur rural hospital on Thursday morning after complaining of chest pain. "There was a lady doctor at the healthcare centre. We told her that my father had fever five days ago. She refused to examine my father and asked us to conduct Covid-19 test first and come only if he tests negative. We had to return home. In the afternoon, he complained of severe chest pain and died," said Sujit, Jugal's son.

As the news of his death spread, Jugal's neighbours arrived at his house to help the family. "In our village, there are about 300 Muslims families and 10 Hindu households. I will never forget what they did for us when an educated doctor refused to treat my father," said Sujit.

"We always come forward whenever anyone is in distress. When Jugal was admitted to SSKM Hospital in Kolkata in 2009, I spent three nights at the hospital," Sheikh Kader, one of Jugal's neighbours, said. Sheikh Siddiqui said he and others of his community collected wood, bought clothes and other items for Jugal's last rites.

NEP

Policy will help students 'how to think', says PM

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New Delhi

THE National Education Policy (NEP), that replaces over a three-decade-old policy in the country, has not triggered any concerns about any regional biases and that is a "heartening achievement", Prime Minister Narendra Modi said on Friday.

"The old policy focused on what to think, but the new NEP focuses on how to think. This is a significant difference," the prime minister said via a video conference at the inaugural address of the 'Conclave on Transformational Reforms in Higher Education' under the NEP.

The Union Cabinet on July 29 had approved the NEP — a vision document to guide the country's education blueprint for the coming years. "Today, views and opinions are coming from all across India (on NEP)," said Modi.

"People are sharing their thoughts on this. It has been widely welcomed and one thing that has been observed is that no one is saying this policy is biased towards any-one area... that is a great thing, a heartening thing. Now everyone's focus is on how this will be implemented."

One of the main thrusts of the NEP, that also triggered some of the sharpest criticism, is the recommendation that students should be taught in their mother tongue or regional language till Class V.

"When students are taught in their mother tongue or regional language, their understanding of the subject becomes that much better. So till Class V, learning in the mother tongue will help greatly. Once the understanding of a subject is there, then the future is solid," said the PM in the conclave organised by the Union Human Resources Development Ministry and the University Grants Commission.

The PM emphasised that the NEP will be the foundation of 21st century India. "NEP's focus is on the type of skills and education needed by our youths in today' s time. The NEP is dedicated to propelling India on the path of growth and empowerment," he said.

SC rejects plea to end trial of 2 Italian marines

NEW DELHI: The Supreme Court on Friday made it clear that it would not close judicial proceedings against two Italian marines accused of killing two Indian fishermen off the Kerala coast in 2012, without hearing the victims' families.

A bench led by Chief Justice of India S A Bobde said the families of the two fishermen have to be compensated adequately, and not reasonably as decided by an international tribunal last month.

"First, let Italy pay them compensation, only then we will allow withdrawal of prosecution. Bring the cheques and the victims' kin here. We want you to pay not reasonable but adequate compensation," the CJI told the lawyer appearing for Italy.

But the bench made it clear that it would not pass orders for closure of the case against the two Italian marines without hearing the victims' families. "We cannot think of any relief for Marines till their prosecution is not withdrawn in Kerala court," the bench said. Solicitor General Tushar Mehta was directed to ensure the kin are made to join the proceedings in the top court. ENS

Mumbai cops are helping Rhea: Bihar Police

Centre files impleadment application seeking to be made a party in Sushant Singh Rajput suicide case

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New Delhi

THE Bihar Police on Friday informed the Supreme Court accusing its Mumbai counterpart of siding with actor Rhea Chakraborty and obstructing its probe into the Sushant Singh Rajput's death by suicide and other related angles.

The Union Government, meanwhile, filed an impleadment application seeking to be made a party in the ongoing case filed by Rhea seeking transfer of probe from Bihar to Mumbai.

In an affidavit, the Bihar government said that the Mumbai Police did not share crucial evidence of the case, obstructed its probe and forcibly quarantined Superintendent of Police, Patna-Central, Vinay Tiwari when he reached the city.

The affidavit came in response to a petition filed Rhea who sought transfer of the case filed by Sushant's father KK Singh from Patna to Mumbai. "The non-cooperation by the Mumbai Police with the Patna Police is clear from the fact that the former has not supplied any documents such as inquest, post-mortem and FSL reports, CCTV footage etc to the latter, despite several requests," the affidavit stated.

So far, the Bihar Police has recorded statements of 10 people related to the Rajput death case. The statements of Rhea or her family members, named in the FIR, have not been recorded yet.

Bihar Police denied that it lacked jurisdiction to probe the FIR lodged by Rajput's father, citing Section 179 of the CrPC which states that when an act is an offence by reason of anything which has been done and of a consequence which has ensued, the offence may be inquired into or tried by a court within whose local jurisdiction such thing has been done or such consequence has ensued.

Since Sushant's father is a resident of Patna, the state police and courts have the jurisdiction to try the offence, the Bihar police asserted.

Rhea Chakraborty's petition is without jurisdiction, premature, misconceived and not maintainable, Bihar Police's affidavit said.

ED grills actor for 8 hrs over irregularities

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Mumbai

ACTOR Rhea Chakraborty appeared before the Enforcement Directorate (ED) on Friday in connection with the Sushant Singh Rajput's suicide and alleged financial irregularities levelled against her.

Rhea had requested the ED to postpone recording of her statement till the Supreme Court passes its order on her plea seeking transfer of the case lodged by the Bihar police to Mumbai. The agency, however, rejected her request. "In view of the fact that the ED has informed the media that the request to postpone her attendance is rejected, Rhea has appeared before the ED office," her advocate Satish Maneshinde said, adding that Rhea would cooperate with the probe. In an FIR filed in Patna, Sushant's father K K Singh accused Rhea and her family of siphoning of ₹15 crore from his son's account in one year "to bank accounts of persons not known or connected to the late actor".

2 MP policemen drag, beat Sikh man, suspended

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Bhopal

TWO Madhya Pradesh policemen were suspended after a video clip showing them dragging a Sikh man in Barwani district of Madhya Pradesh went viral, triggering a political controversy.

The suspended policemen are: ASI Sitaram Bhatnagar and head constable Mohan Kamre.

Not only the opposition Congress but the ruling BJP ally SAD has also demanded action against the guilty men in khaki.

In the 50-second clip, the man identified as Prem Singh is seen lying at the feet of a cop, who then physically pulls Singh in full public view. The clip also shows another policeman pushing a turbaned man, who comes to save Prem Singh.

In the video, Prem Singh is seen shouting Sikh religion slogans and appealing to save him from the assaulting law-keepers. Prem Singh said: "Three policemen, including a female officer Kavita Kanesh, Assistant Sub Inspector Sitaram Bhatnagar and Head Constable Mohan Kamre came to my shop and asked me to remove the shop or pay them up. When I told them that I had only ₹200, they started beating me. They dishonoured my turban and pulled me from my hair, when I resisted. Then they took me in their vehicle."

> The policemen dishonoured my turban and pulled me from my hair, when I resisted. Then they took me in their vehicle when I refused to pay them up

> Prem Singh, Shop keeper

State Congress spokesperson Narendra Saluja took to twitter, sharing the video. "Prem Singh Granthi runs a lock-keys shop near the Pulsood police outpost. He was beaten up, his turban pulled out and he was dragged through his hair on the road in full public view by policemen. This amounts to hurting religious sentiments of the Sikhs," tweeted Saluja.

SAD president and Ferozpur MP Sukhbir Singh Badal also tweeted the same video. "Too shocking for words! The barbaric and humiliating attack on Giani Prem Singh Granthi and other Sikhs in MP is utterly inhuman and unacceptable. I urge CM Shivraj Singh Chouhan to set an example of punitive action against those who treat the sword-arm of the nation with such contempt," tweeted Badal.

Sinha vows dialogue with people, restoration of peace

FAYAZ WANI @ Srinagar

FORMER Union minister and senior BJP leader Manoj Sinha on Friday was sworn in as Lieutenant Governor of J&K, becoming the first political leader to take charge of the union territory (UT).

Sinha said restoring peace and ending uncertainty and militancy in the UT would be his mission. The L-G also said the Jammu and Kashmir administration will soon initiate 'direct dialogue' with the people to end the situation of uncertainty and the menace of terrorism.

The 61-year-old Sinha was administered the oath in English by J&K High Court Chief Justice Gita Mittal at Raj Bhavan. He took the oath.

Previous L-G Girish Chandra Murmu's two advisors Farooq Khan and Baseer Ahmad Khan and top police and civil officials were present on the occasion. Besides, J&K BJP president Ravindra Raina, BJP Lok Sabha MP Jugal Kishore Sharma, PDP Rajya Sabha MP Nazir Ahmad Laway and J&K Apni Party leader Ghulam Hassan Mir were also present. "Kashmir is India's paradise and I have been given a responsibility to play a role in J&K," said Sinha.

Without mentioning the abrogation of Article 370 and the bifurcation of J&K on August 5 last year, he said: "August 5 is an important day in J&K's history now. After years of isolation, J&K has joined the national mainstream." Outlining his priorities, Sinha pitched for peace and stability and said the powers of the Constitution will be used for the betterment of the people and the development of Jammu and Kashmir.

'We need to establish a dialogue with the common people of Jammu and Kashmir. We don't have any agenda in that. There will be no discrimination against anyone. Constitution will be Gita in that," he said.

Explore possibility of restoring 4G: SC

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @New Delhi

THE Supreme Court on Friday asked the Narendra Modi government and the Jammu and Kashmir administration to come up with a final stand on resumption of 4G internet services in the UT by August 11.

The observation from a bench headed by Justice NV Ramana came while hearing a contempt petition filed by an NGO against the central government and the J&K administration for non-compliance of SC order to constitute a three-member high-powered committee to look into the issue of restoring 4G services in J&K.

The court asked both to explore possibilities of restoring the network in some areas in the region. "There is no question of further adjournment," the bench said while slating the hearing for August 11.

The move came after Mehta, who was appearing for the J&K administration, sought more time to clarify former Lieutenant Governor G.C. Murmu's statement to the media on his recommendation to resume 4G connectivity in the UT.

Mehta said the L-G resigned Thursday and he required time to get instructions on it and file a response. "Now, the governor has changed. You have waited for this so long, wait for two more days," the bench said.

Punjab hooch tragedy: CM raises compensation to ₹5L

HARPREET BAJWA @Chandigarh

PUNJAB Chief Minister Amarinder Singh on Friday announced an increase in compensation from ₹2 lakh to ₹5 lakh to the kin of the deceased. He announced a relief of ₹5 lakh to those who survived the tragedy, but lost eyesight.

Singh said the death toll in the tragedy has risen to 121 with eight more people succumbing to spurious liquor in Tarn Taran, taking the fatality count in the district to 92, while 15 have died in Amritsar and 14 in Gurdaspur. "No one involved will be spared. Whoever is involved will be given strict punishment as per law," he said while addressing families of the victims.

He met families of the hooch tragedy victims in Tarn Taran district and said it was not an accident but "murder", for which the culprits will be given strict punishment. The chief minister said properties of those responsible for the 'unpardonable act' will also be confiscated.

He was accompanied by Punjab Congress chief Sunil Jakhar, CPS to CM Suresh Kumar, Punjab DGP Dinkar Gupta besides Member of Parliament from Khadoor Sahib JS Dimpa and MLA Ramanjit Singh Sikki.

The CM said the investigation into the case is already underway and Director General of Police Dinkar Gupta has been directed to expedite it.

"Politics is being played even when investigations have just started," he said when asked about the Opposition taking names of some members from the ruling Congress in connection with the tragedy.

Earlier, Punjab Congress president Sunil Jakhar hit out at the SAD-BJP alliance for allegedly nurturing the liquor mafia.

Soren moves court against BJP MP

MUKESH RANJAN @Ranchi

JHARKHAND CM Hemant Soren has moved the Ranchi court against BJP MP Nishikant Dubey over his attempt to reopen a case allegedly filed by a Mumbai-based girl against the CM in 2013.

It all began as a war of tweets about a fortnight ago. The CM responding to Dubey's demand for reopening the case had warned him of legal action.

The CM has also made Twitter Communications India Pvt Ltd and Facebook India Online Services Pvt Ltd as respondents in the case.

Dubey denied having received any legal notice and alleged that it was CM's "conspiracy" to get a 'gag' order (ex parte order) from the court. "Ideally, a legal notice should have been issued against me. Instead, they filed a civil suit against me on August 4, with the first hearing on August 5 in my absence. The next hearing is said to be due on August 22," said Dubey.

"I will file a defamation suit against Soren, also making the girl, who had lodged a rape-kidnapping case against him while being the CM, as a party to the case," said Dubey.

Leaders from Soren's JMM party were reluctant to comment on the issue. "I am unaware of any such development," said JMM general secretary Vinod Pandey.

Jharkhand villagers lynch man, injure another on suspicion of vegetable theft

MUKESH RANJAN @Ranchi

IN a case of mob-lynching in Jharkhand, villagers suspecting theft of vegetables from their fields thrashed a man belonging to a minority community to death and grievously injured another on Wednesday.

The incident was reported from Jamtara, around 225 km from the state capital Ranchi. The police said they have arrested six persons and registered an FIR at Karmatar police station. One of the accused is absconding, they said.

The deceased has been identified as Saykul alias Fahwa Ansari. A critically injured Binod Mondal has been admitted to Patliputra Medical College and Hospital (PMCH) in Dhanbad.

"We had rushed a police team to the spot which found Binod Mondal (50) screaming in pain near the fields in Karmatar. He told the policemen that he along with his friend, Sayakul (46), had been thrown into a nearby well after being thrashed brutally by the villagers," said Office in Charge of Karmatar Police Station Ram Sarik Tiwari.

Both of them belonged to Kashitanr village adjacent to the place where the incident took place, he added. "They allegedly were thrashed brutally with bamboo sticks and canes and thrown into a well after falling unconscious. Later, according to Binod, somehow he managed to climb out of the well but Sayakul succumbed to his injuries," said Tiwari.

The body of Sayakul was recovered from the well and sent for postmortem, while Binod was rushed to Sadar Hospital from where he was referred to PMCH, he added. Sayakul's body was recovered from the well and sent for postmortem.

Tiwari said an FIR under Section 302 (murder) along with other sections of the IPC against the accused persons has been lodged.

OXFORD COVID VACCINE TO BE PRICED AT ₹225 IN INDIA

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @New Delhi

PUNE-based Serum Institute of India (SII), which is manufacturing Oxford University's Covid-19 vaccine, said on Friday it would make the shot available at â‚¹225 for India and $3 for other low and middle-income countries.

SII has tied up with Gavi, the Vaccine Alliance and the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation to be able to deliver up to 100 million doses of Covid-19 vaccines for India and other lower and middle-income countries. SII, the world's largest vaccine manufacturer by volume, also has a manufacturing partnership with US-based company Novavax.

The vaccine candidate by Oxford University is in advanced stages of clinical trials in India and several other countries. It is likely to be available for public use in the first half of 2021. This experimental vaccine was found to show good results in early-stage human trials.

"The rampant spread of the virus has rendered the entire world in an unimaginable halt of uncertainty and to ensure maximum immunization coverage and contain the pandemic, it is important to make sure that the most remote and poorest countries of the world have access to affordable cure and preventive measures," said SII CEO Adar Poonawala.

Multi-crore scam in bus purchases: Digvijaya

Rajya Sabha member and former Madhya Pradesh CM Digvijaya Singh has written to the DG of state's EOW alleging a multi-crore scam in purchase of buses by Bhopal City Link Limited in 2013. Singh has demanded lodging of an FIR into the complaint in the matter by Bhopal-based Capital Roadways director Charanjit Singh Gulati. The complaint is pending with the EOW since 2016. In the complaint it has been alleged that a scam of around ₹7 crore was committed in 2013 by purchasing three-year-old buses worth ₹24 lakh each.

Ex-minister demands ballot paper for by-elections

Former minister and senior Congress MLA Sajjan Singh Verma has written to the President of India and the Election Commission, demanding that ballot papers be used in the by-elections for 27 assembly seats in Madhya Pradesh on the lines of recent parliamentary elections in Sri Lanka. Verma has submitted that judicious mix of face mask, hand sanitizers, social distancing and ballot papers ensured 71% voting in the island nation even during the coronavirus pandemic. The EC has been requested to follow the same model for safe by-elections in MP. The commission is yet to finalise the dates for the 27 crucial assembly by-polls which may decide the future of state's politics. In Lanka the elections were done through the ballot paper to prevent corona infection.

Woman ends 28-year fast after bhoomi pujan

The bhoomi pujan for the Ram Janmbhoomi Temple in Ayodhya has not only triggered nationwide celebrations but also marked the end of a 28-year-long fast by an elderly woman in Jabalpur. LANDSLIDE WIN PAVES WAY FOR RAJAPAKSAS' SUPER-MAJORITY

The brothers need 150 seats to change constitution; they have 145

Sri Lankan Prime Minister Mahinda Rajapaksa greets supporters at his residence in Tangalle on Friday following his election victory | AP

COLOMBO

SRI Lanka's powerful Rajapaksa brothers secured a landslide victory in the parliamentary election, giving them nearly the two-thirds majority of seats required to make constitutional changes, according to results released Friday.

PM Mahinda Rajapaksa is likely to be sworn in the same position by his younger brother, President Gotabaya Rajapaksa, after the vote that could strengthen dynastic rule in the Indian Ocean island nation.

The Rajapaksas' Sri Lanka People's Party (SLPP) won 145 seats in the 225-member Parliament while its main opponent obtained only 54 seats, the election commission's results showed. The SLPP won all but four of the 22 electoral districts on offer, polling 6.8 million votes (59.9%).

The main Tamil party, Tamil National Alliance, did not fare well as their parliamentary representation saw a reduction for a total of 10 seats from 16 it had won the last time, and 16 other seats were split among 12 small parties. The Rajapaksa brothers need 150 seats, or control of two-thirds of seats in Parliament, to be able to change the constitution. At least four small parties collaborate with Rajapaksas' party, so they appear to have mustered that support.

Jehan Perera, an analyst with independent think tank National Peace Council, said while a win for the Rajapaksa brothers was expected the proportion of victory was not.

"I thought there will be an erosion of votes (from the presidential election) and there will be some means of disillusionment at their performance," he said, adding that voters had demonstrated the need for a strong and cohesive government led by strong leaders who could easily work together.

He said they also seemed to have considered security issues because disunity between the president and prime minister of the then-government is blamed for a security let down that led to last year's Easter bomb attacks.

However, analysts say any attempt by Gotabaya Rajapaksa to push for changes that will strengthen presidential power at the expense of those of the prime minister may trigger sibling rivalry.

Gotabaya was elected president last Nov after projecting himself as the only leader who could secure the country after IS-inspired attacks. Agencies

FIREBRAND BUDDHIST MONK GETS SEAT

A radical Buddhist monk accused of instigating hate crimes against Muslims has won a seat in Sri Lanka's parliament. The Our Power of People party led by Galagodaatte Gnanasara, who has vowed to fight Islamic extremism, won one seat in Wednesday's election. Gnanasara served nine months of a six-year jail term for intimidating the wife of a missing cartoonist and contempt of court until he was given a presidential pardon in May last year.Gnanasara has close ties with Wirathu, an extremist monk in Myanmar whose outbursts have stoked religious tensions there. Wirathu visited Sri Lanka as a guest of Gnanasara shortly after 2014 anti-Muslim riots. The duo vowed to fight what they called the threat from Islamic jihadists.

Vital virus aid talks on brink of collapse

WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON talks on vital Covid-19 rescue money are teetering on the brink of collapse after a marathon meeting in the Capitol generated lots of recriminations but little progress on the top issues confronting negotiators.

"There's a handful of very big issues that we are still very far apart" on, said Treasury Secretary Steven Mnuchin. He talked of impasses on aid to states and local governments and renewing supplemental unemployment benefits in the Thursday night meetings.

Both sides said the future of the talks is uncertain. No meeting is scheduled so far for Friday, an informal deadline to reach the broad outlines of an agreement. President Donald Trump is considering executive orders to address evictions and unemployment insurance, but they appear unlikely to have much impact.

A breakdown in the talks would put at risk more than $100 billion to help reopen schools, a fresh round of $1,200 direct payments to most people and hundreds of billions of dollars for state and local governments to help them avoid furloughing workers and cutting services as tax revenues shrivel.

Democrats House Speaker Nancy Pelosi and Senate Minority Leader Chuck Schumer, emerged from Thursday's meeting to give a pessimistic update about the chances for an agreement.

"We're very far apart. It's most unfortunate," Pelosi said.

Both sides have adopted a hard line in the talks, though the Trump team is more open in disclosing a handful of its proposed compromises. Republicans were late to agree to the talks and have become frustrated by the inflexible tactics of Pelosi and Schumer, who have been exuding confidence in a political and legislative landscape that appeared tilted in their favor.

The Democratic pair say the federal coronavirus aid package needs to be huge to meet the moment: a surge in cases and deaths, double-digit joblessness and the threat of poverty for millions of the newly unemployed.

"We believe the patient needs a major operation while Republicans want to apply just a Band-Aid," Schumer said. "We won't let them just pass the Band-Aid, go home and leave America bleeding."

Senate Republicans have been split, with roughly half of McConnell's rank and file opposed to another rescue bill at all. Four prior virus response bills totaling almost $3 trillion have passed on bipartisan votes despite intense wrangling, but conservatives recoiled at the prospect of another Pelosi-brokered deal with a big deficit-financed cost. AP

Xiaomi to release OS update sans banned apps

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

CHINESE smartphone maker Xiaomi, which dominates the local smartphone market in terms of sales, is stepping up efforts to adhere to the Indian government's ban on Chinese apps—now developing a new version of its MIUI software.

Xiaomi's apps, including Mi Browser Pro and Mi Community which were among the apps that were on the banned list, are not functional on its handsets anymore. The new version of MIUI is in the works and will be rolled out in a phased manner over the next few weeks, Xiaomi India Head Manu Jain posted on Twitter Friday. "We want to clarify that none of the apps blocked by the Indian Government are available for access on any Xiaomi phones launched in India. Further, we are developing a new version of MIUI that will be built without pre-installation of any of the blocked apps," Jain said. MIUI is the operating system that Xiaomi runs on its smartphones, and is an important part of the company's business model.

All the company's upcoming smartphones will have the updated software and these phones will not come pre-installed with the banned Mi apps, Jain added. Xiaomi also reaffirmed that all its Indian user data stays on local servers since 2018 and "none of this data is shared with anyone outside of India". Recently, the company's Mi Browser had come under fire for collecting user information, but Xiaomi has refuted the allegations. Jain further said that the company "reserves the right" to take legal action against those spreading misinformation about its apps.

> None of the apps blocked by the Indian Government are available for access. We are developing a new version of MIUI built without pre-installation of any blocked apps..
> Manu Jain, Business Head, Xiaomi India

Meanwhile, there are several other apps including Mi Store, Mi Cloud and more from Xiaomi available on both Google Play store and Apple App store. Xiaomi preloads some of its own apps onto phones it sells in India. It has also shifted its assembly lines and parts of its supply chain to India to increase localisation.

Confidence at a record low: RBI consumer data

Current situation index at just 53.8 in July, well below the positive sentiment mark

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

DETERIORATING job prospects and rising anxieties about personal finances in the wake of the Covid-19 outbreak drove a record drop in consumer confidence in July.

According to the Reserve Bank of India's (RBI) forward-looking consumer survey, the current situation index (CSI) dropped to 53.8 during the month from 63.7 in May. That is way below the 100-mark, which represents the dividing line between pessimism and optimism. The numbers suggest that consumer confidence has plateaued well below pre-pandemic levels. In March, the CSI was 85.6 compared to 104.6 in March 2019, when confidence was high.

While sentiment had been steadily falling since the government imposed the nationwide lockdown, the future expectations index (FEI) however, charted back into positive territory, indicating that consumers were turning cautiously optimistic with signs of recovery for the year ahead. FEI for the year ahead rebounded, rising to 105.4 in July from 97.9 in May, the survey noted. Last year in July, the CSI was 95.7 and FEI 124.8.

"Consumer perception of the prevailing economic situation, employment scenario and own income was significantly lower than that in May," the RBI said in the report. "Most respondents reported a reduction in discretionary spending" and didn't expect to increase non-essential spending in the coming year as well, it added.

At the same time, the expected inflation among households is rising, making it difficult to cut interest rates to spur spending. Households' inflation expectation increased by 60 basis points in July compared with May.

Separately, the Business Assessment Index also fell to an all-time low of 55.3 in the quarter ended June from 102.2 in the preceding three months. Manufacturing companies assessed were pessimistic on major demand indicators like production, order books, capacity utilisation and employment conditions.

RBI constitutes committee on one-time loan restructuring

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

THE Reserve Bank of India (RBI) has announced the constitution of the committee that is being tasked with framing the rules for the one-time restructuring of borrowings that was announced on Thursday.

As announced, the committee will be hekmed by veteran banker K V Kamath, who has been named the chairman. The other members will include former State Bank of India managing director Diwakar Gupta, who will join from September 1 after the completion of his term as Vice President, Asian Development Bank. Another member will be T N Manoharan, who will join on August 14, after the completion of his tenure as chairman, Canara Bank.

Apart from this, banking expert Ashvin Parekh, and the CEO of Indian Banks' Association (IBA) will also be in the committee with the post of member secretary.

According to the central bank, the committee will submit its recommendations on the financial parameters of the proposed restructuring to be factored in the resolution plans, with sector-specific benchmark ranges for such parameters.

For this task, officials said that it will be fully empowered to consult or invite any person it deems fit, and can devise its own procedures for its internal functioning.

The committee will also undertake the process validation for the resolution plans "without going into the commercial aspects," of all accounts with an aggregate exposure of ₹1,500 crore and above at the time of invocation of the borrowing, according to the country's central bank.

After the committee submits its recommendation, the central bank will notify it along with modifications, if any, within 30 days.

Telecom weathers Covid-19 storm in good shape

JONATHAN ANANDA @ New Delhi

TELECOM seems to be one of the few sectors which have managed to shrug off the crisis spawned by the pandemic—though massive litigation-related provisions still managed to push two of the three private telcos into heavy losses in Q1FY21. Bharti Airtel and Vodafone Idea posted net losses of ₹15,933 crore and ₹25,460 crore respectively.

But Reliance Jio, the only private operator free from the AGR-related millstone around its rivals' necks, managed to record a whopping 183 per cent y-o-y jump in net profit during the quarter.

In fact, taking aside the AGR-related provisions, Bharti Airtel and Reliance Jio have both recorded significant improvements in operational and profitability metrics for the quarter—far removed from the plunge the general economy took after the lockdown beginning March 24.

Airtel's India revenues rose 14.6 per cent and consolidated revenues by 15.4 per cent year-on-year, while EBITDA rose 25.3 per cent. Its average revenue per user (ARPU)—a key measure of profitability—rose sharply from ₹129 in the previous quarter to ₹159 in Q1. Reliance Jio, for its part, saw revenue from operations grow by 33.7 per cent y-o-y, to reach ₹16,557 crore ARPU rose to ₹140.3 compared to ₹130.6 for the March-quarter.

REVENUES UP

34% growth in Reliance Jio's Q1 operational revenue

14.6% growth in Bharti Airtel's India mobile Q1 revenues

But rival Vodafone Idea is not doing as well. It has failed to capitalise fully on the tariff hikes rolled out in December last year by the whole industry. Its revenue from operations declined 5.4 per cent to ₹10,659 crore, primarily driven by a sharp fall in new subscriber additions.

Despite this, analysts see the sector doing better overall. "Indian telcos are likely to weather the coronavirus-led slowdown... we forecast the industry mobile segment's EBITDA to grow by 25 to 30 per cent year-on-year (FY20: 25 per cent) despite expectations for Indian GDP to contract by 5 per cent during this period," said Fitch Ratings.

Kia unveils the Sonet, likely price tag ₹7-12L

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

KOREAN automaker Kia Motors on Friday unveiled the Kia Sonet, the company's third offering for the Indian market. The sub-compact SUV will compete against the likes of Hyundai Venue, Maruti Suzuki Vitara Brezza, Tata Nexon and Ford EcoSport when launched next month at an expected price range of ₹7-12 lakh.

The automaker wants to replicate the success it achieved with its first launch—the Seltos SUV. However, the competition will be a lot more intense for Kia this time, since two other carmakers—Toyota Kirloskar and Nissan—are also gearing up to launch their own models in the segment as buyers continue to opt for compact UVs over sedans and hatchbacks.

"We are extremely excited to introduce the Sonet, which is made in India for the world. After the success of the Seltos and Carnival, we are confident that Kia will revolutionise yet another market segment in India with the Sonet by addressing the unmet needs and aspirations of customers," said Kookhyun Shim, MD and CEO at Kia Motors India.

Kia Motors had debuted in the Indian car market exactly a year ago in August 2019, and since then, it has sold more than one lakh vehicles—the fastest automaker to have reached this target. However, in recent months, the Covid-19 outbreak has seen its factory dispatches taking a double digit fall. Ho Sung Song, President and CEO, Kia Motors Corporation said that about $2 billion in investment has gone into its Indian plant, which is expected to play a crucial role in its global markets. He added that currently, Kia Motors India ships out the Seltos SUV to about 70 countries.

Like the Hyundai Venue, the Sonet will be offered with multiple powertrains. Buyers get a choice of two gasoline engines and five variants of diesel-powered vehicles.

Taxpayers deserve better services: FM

New Delhi: Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman on Friday said taxpayers are nation-builders and the government would come out with a charter of rights for them. The minister also said the government has taken several measures towards simplification, improving transparency and moderation in rates as part of efforts to bring in ease for honest taxpayers.

Bata India Q1 net loss at `100.88 crore

New Delhi: Bata India Ltd on Friday reported a consolidated net loss of ₹100.88 crore for the first quarter ended June 2020 as sales were hit by the Covid-19 related lockdowns. The company had posted a net profit of ₹100.97 crore in the April-June quarter a year ago, Bata India said in a BSE filing. Its revenue from operations was down 84.69 per cent.

Mahindra & Mahindra net profit tanks 97% in Q1, but tractors shine

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

MAHINDRA & Mahindra on Friday posted a 97 per cent year-on-year slump in its consolidated net profit to ₹67.79 crore during the first quarter of FY21. It had posted a consolidated net profit of ₹2,259.74 crore during the corresponding quarter last year.

According to the company's statements, M&M's net revenue also declined 56.35 per cent y-o-y to ₹5,589.43 crore during the period. The Group's operations and financial results have been adversely impacted by the outbreak of Covid-19 pandemic and the consequent lockdown announced by the government, it added. "The unprecedented shock induced by COVID-19 is the worst that India has seen in the post-independence period. This is the first instance of a simultaneous demand and supply shock — making it different from the previous crisis," it said, adding that a "combination of lower incomes and heightened uncertainty is expected to drag consumer spending and business investment in FY21. "It is now a foregone conclusion that the economy is set to contract during the year—the first time in 41 years," the company statement said.

General outlook remains bleak amidst pandemic

According to the firm, this simultaneous demand and supply shock is a historic first and a "combination of lower incomes and heightened uncertainty is expected to drag consumer spending and business investment in FY21".

Segment-wise, its automotive division witnessed massive setbacks, while farm equipment performed better than during the previous quarter. During the period under review, the company sold 27,565 vehicles, marking a 78 per cent decline in sales, but tractor demand remained strong at 64,140 units during the quarter.

The company said that the "timely relaxation" of the lockdown for the agricultural sector, along with positive rural sentiment has led to good sales numbers for tractors during the quarter despite the supply chain issues, showing a positive growth rates in May and June 2020, Mahindra said.

Microsoft eyes larger TikTok acquisition?

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ Bengaluru

MICROSOFT is reportedly planning to acquire popular social video app TikTok in markets like India and Europe too, besides in the earlier announced United States market.

In countries such as India and the US, where governments have actively flagged data privacy concerns over the app's use and Chinese ownership, the takeover will separate the businesses from parent company Bytedance, which faces allegations of being heavily influenced by the Chinese state.

In the US however, the tech giant may have to move fast after President Donald Trump signed an executive order on August 6 banning the app after 45 days. Trump also mentioned India's recent ban on various Chinese apps in the order, stating that India's Ministry of Electronics and Information Technology asserted that they were "stealing and surreptitiously transmitting users' data in an unauthorized manner to servers which have locations outside India."

Following the latest EO, analysts believe that the valuation of the TikTok, Microsoft deal could be significantly lower than the earlier estimates of $50 billion. Bytedance. Microsoft said on Sunday that following its CEO Satya Nadella's discussions with Trump, it may acquire TikTok in US and other markets like Canada, Australia and New Zealand.

According to a Financial Times report, the firm is now eying other Tiktok units too, such as India where it had generated the highest number of downloads, nearly 611 million, before it was banned in June this year.

The US is also a key market In terms of revenue, accounting for nearly 19 per cent at $86.5 million.

Studds aims for domestic market share of 40%

ARSHAD KHAN @ New Delhi

STUDDS, the world's largest helmet-maker by volume, aims to capture over 40 per cent of the domestic market over the next three years. The homegrown company has logged a CAGR of 32 per cent over the last three financial years and, despite the annoying pandemic, aims to grow at around 10 per cent in FY21 too.

"According to a 2018 report, 65-70 per cent of the market is for the organised or the ISI-certified players; whereas the rest of the 30 per cent is for the unorganised players.. According to a 2018 Frost and Sullivan report, we have a 27 per cent market share, which has grown to, I guess, 30 per cent now. We want to take this number to 40 per cent in the next three years," Sidhartha Bhushan Khurana, Managing Director, STUDDS Accessories Ltd told this publication.

"The first quarter of FY21 was affected by the pandemic and we saw a 50% decline YoY," he admitted, "but given the quick recovery, we are hopeful to end this fiscal with 10% per cent growth. However, in FY22, we look forward to grow at 50 per cent year on year."

Over 40-years old, the company believes the market opportunity is "pretty big" and that the government's new diktat on banning non-ISI certified helmets will give organised players a big boost.

"That's a very big chunk of the market that'll come to ISI-approved helmets and that'll help branded helmets sell more. The government is also making sure that the riders are wearing helmets-it'll soon be made standard for the pillion riders as well-which is a huge market," Khurana said.

In the FY20, the company sold close to 7.2 million helmets, out of which 500,000 were exported and the rest were sold domestically. To meet the growing demand, the company recently opened up a new manufacturing plant in Faridabad that has a production capacity of 6 million units. This takes its total capacity to 12.5 million bike helmets and 1.5 million bicycle helmets per year.

"Up until last year, we had two manufacturing facilities with a production capacity of 6.5 million units. In FY20, we opened a new unit for the manufacturing of bicycle helmets, with a production capacity of 1.5 million helmets. We have started production in our newest plant with a production capacity of 6 million. So, right now we have a total capacity of 12.5 million bike helmets and 1.5 million bicycle helmets," he noted. Studds is also eyeing a big chunk of the export market, and had come up with the export-focused premium segment SMK brand in 2016.

> The first quarter of FY21 was affected by the pandemic and we saw a 50% decline year on year (YoY). But given the quick recovery, we are hopeful to end this fiscal with 10% per cent growth. However, in FY 22, we look forward to grow at 50 per cent YoY.

Daimler enters into used vehicle business in India

BINITA JAISWAL @ Chennai

DAIMLER India Commercial Vehicles (DICV), the manufacturer of Bharat Benz trucks and buses, announced on Friday its entry into the used vehicle business with the Bharat Benz Exchange programme. And with the government beginning to execute new contracts, the company is also optimistic about demand for trucks picking up.

But, DICV's entry into the used vehicle space is bein gdriven by affordability issues being faced by fleet owners due to the pandemic.

According to Satyakam Arya, MD and CEO of DICV, the is a demand for reliable and quality-assured used vehicles, especially since BS-VI norms have pushed the prices of new trucks higher.

"The used vehicle market is almost three times that of the new vehicle sales market," added Arya. The company will initially deal in used trucks and subsequently extend the service for the bus segment too. "We feel it is the right time to tap the massive potential presented by the used commercial vehicle segment".

The platform will allow customers to exchange their used vehicles of any brand for new or used Bharat Benz trucks.

As for the outlook, DICV has begun to see signs of recovering demand. "There are green shoots emerging from the mining, construction and e-commerce space. The government has started executing fresh contracts, which is triggering demand," he said.

Wolves dig deep to reach Europa quarters

Wolves battled into the quarterfinals of the Europa League on Thursday while Sevilla, Bayer Leverkusen and Basel enjoyed far more comfortable victories. Raul Jimenez scored the only goal from the penalty spot in the ninth minute and Wolves edged Olympiakos 1-0 at Molineux for a 2-1 aggregate win. Sevilla cruised past Roma 2-0 in a one-off game at Duisburg.

WOMEN'S ODI WORLD CUP POSTPONED

World body forced to defer showpiece event, India gets to keep T20 WC in 2021

VENKATA KRISHNA B @Chennai

THE ICC Women's ODI World Cup, scheduled to take place in New Zealand from February to March, became the second global cricketing event to be deferred in the last two months. The ICC, after its business development wing met via video-conference on Friday, said the event will now be held in 2022, but it has not confirmed the host nation. This means the women's calendar will now have two events in 2022 as a T20 World Cup is also slotted to take place in South Africa.

The other big decision was with regards to the T20 Men's World Cup. India would get to keep the 2021 event, with Australia now hosting the event in 2022. Per the original schedule, the latter was scheduled to host in October-November this year. Both events have been postponed because of the pandemic. The decision to postpone the event in New Zealand is on expected lines as women's cricket has come to a standstill because of the pandemic. Moreover, the qualifiers — scheduled to take place last month in Sri Lanka — was also postponed. The said event will now take place in 2021 with a venue to be announced later.

ENGLAND TOUR POSTPONED

The BCCI confirmed that England's white-ball tour, which was supposed to happen in September-October has been moved to early 2021.

"We have taken the decision to move the ICC Women's Cricket World Cup to give players from every competing nation the best opportunity to be ready for the world's biggest stage and there is still a global qualifier to complete to decide the final three teams. Moving the event by 12 months gives all competing teams the chance to play a sufficient level of cricket ahead of both the qualification event and leading into a Cricket World Cup so the integrity of the tournament is maintained," ICC Chief Executive Manu Sawhney said.

With regards to the T20 Men's World Cup, the BCCI and Cricket Australia were at loggerheads as to who hosts the event in 2021. Australia wanted to host the postponed event in 2021, but BCCI was firm in its stance that a swap would mean there would be two ICC events happening in India in successive years.

Teams which qualified for the 2020 T20 World Cup in Australia will get to participate in the event to be hosted by India next year and a new qualification process will be announced for the one in 2022.

Hockey captain Manpreet & four others Covid-19 positive

SWAROOP SWAMINATHAN
@ Chennai

IN a setback to the men's hockey team, five players, including skipper Manpreet Singh, tested positive for the coronavirus on Friday. Surender Kumar, Jaskaran Singh, Krishan Pathak and Varun Kumar were the other four players to test positive. This is the first time that high profile Indian athletes have returned positive tests at the same time.

All of them had recently returned to the SAI campus in Bengaluru after going on a break for more than a month. Upon returning, they were administered rapid Covid-19 tests before the players were asked to quarantine in their respective rooms for a two week period according to state government rules. Even though all five had returned negative results on the rapid test, as Manpreet and Surender had developed symptoms, they undertook the RT-PCR test on Thursday. The results were conveyed to SAI by the state government, according to a press release by SAI.

"All four tested negative in the rapid test. However, since Manpreet and Surender began to display some Covid-19 symptoms later, they along with other ten athletes who had travelled together were given the Quantitative RT-PCR test on Thursday, and the four have been found to be Covid positive," the release said. After the release dropped, Krishan also tested positive for the virus. The release stated that since all four travelled together to Bengaluru, they might have picked it up then. "Since all the athletes who tested positive had travelled together, there is a high likelihood that they contracted the virus while travelling from their hometowns to Bengaluru." In all 12 athletes travelled together to join the camp, and all of them have been administered the RT-PCR tests. A few more test results are awaited.

The athletes are being kept in isolation for the moment. "All athletes, including Manpreet, who reported to camp were undergoing quarantine as per the Health Ministry guidelines and as a precautionary measure, were kept in isolation to arrest the possibility of transmission of the virus. The quarantined athletes did not interact with other athletes who were already present at the camp," the release noted.

The 28-year-old Manpreet said he was doing fine according to the press release. "I am self quarantined on the SAI campus and I am very happy with the way SAI authorities have handled the situation. I am very happy that they made the testing of athletes mandatory. That proactive step helped in identifying the problem right in time." Meanwhile, sources said it was too early to make a call about the cancellation of the camp. As per the original plan, it's supposed to start around August 20.

Ben Stokes took two late wickets to help drag England back into the first Test against Pakistan at Old Trafford on Friday. At stumps, Day 3, Pakistan were 137/8. Stuart Broad and Chris Woakes also scalped two wickets each. Pakistan lead by 244 runs. Earlier, England were all out for 219 as Yasir Shah took four wickets | AFP

Jamshedpur FC appoint Coyle as head coach

JAMSHEDPUR: Jamshedpur FC on Friday appointed former Bolton Wanderers manager Owen Coyle as their new head coach ahead of the upcoming Indian Super League season. The 54-year-old Coyle had propelled Chennaiyin FC to a runners-up finish last season. "It's going to be a huge challenge. Young Indian players are hugely important. We have to stand together...," Coyle said.

11 footballers from Bangladesh Covid +ve

DHAKA: Eleven players from the Bangladesh national football squad have tested positive for coronavirus, dealing a blow to their 2022 World Cup qualifying campaign. The infections were confirmed after 24 of 36 players scheduled to join a training camp organised by the team's English coach Jamie Day were tested. "None of them carried any symptoms," Bangladesh FF said Friday.

Akhil to kickoff his season in France

BENGALURU: India's Akhil Rabindra will start his 2020 season later this month with the French FFSA GT4 Championship. The racer's season kicks off on August 21 at Circuit Paul Armagnac de Nogaro in France with the three day of 'Easter Cups from Nagaro" series. He will drive an Aston Martin Racing V8 Vantage GT4 for the AGS Events Racing team.

Bajrang comes to the aid of foreign coach

FIROZ MIRZA @ Chennai

GRECO-ROMAN foreign coach Temo Kazarashvili was staring at an uncertain future since his arrival in India last week. The Georgian was struggling to find a place to stay after completing a seven-day quarantine at a hotel in Sonepat, Haryana on Friday. This was when star wrestler Bajrang Punia came to his rescue and offered him his flat to move in.

Usually, the responsibility of a foreign coach lies with the employer, which in this case is SAI. However, the federation insisted that the coach should have waited for permission from his employer or WFI before flying down to India. Temo turned 61 in May and this might have made the authorities wary especially in the wake of pandemic.

"Yes, he shifted to my flat today (Friday). We have also stocked up groceries and other essential items at the flat so that he doesn't need to go out," Bajrang, who is training at the Inspire Institute of Sport in Vijayanagar, told this daily.

Incidentally, the 65kg wrestler's coach Shako Bentinidis and Temo arrived in the country boarding the same extradition flight meant for Indians stranded in Georgia on July 30. Shako served his seven-day mandatory quarantine period at a hotel in New Delhi before flying out for Vijayanagar.

The WFI said that it made the arrangement for the coach's stay. "He arrived without intimating WFI and SAI. Even the national camp has not resumed in the country. We have asked him to go to Jagjit Singh Academy in Jalandhar," WFI assistant secretary Vinod Tomar said. The coach, however, was in Sonepat till the time of filing of this report. And SAI Sonepat centre is not functional at the moment.

CLIMATE CHANGE MAY PROLONG DROUGHTS IN EUROPE

Punishing two-year droughts like the record-breaking one that gripped Central Europe from 2018 to 2019 could become much more frequent if the region fails to curb greenhouse gas emissions, researchers said in new study published this week. We take a look how this would affect huge swathes of cultivated land in the continent

5 YEARS IN A ROW

The five hottest years in recorded history have occurred in the last five years

This extreme heat was exacerbated in 2018 and 2019 by two consecutive summers of drought

The extreme heat affected more than half of Central Europe, according to the study in Scientific Reports

1766

Researchers in Germany and the Czech Republic used data going back to 1766

They concluded that the 2018-2019 drought was the largest and most severe dry spell ever recorded

> The observational record suggests that the ongoing 2018-2019 European drought event is unprecedented in the last 250 years, with substantial implications for vegetation health
> Study

AIM OF THE STUDY

Researchers sought to estimate whether prolonged droughts would become more frequent in the future by using global climate change models

DROUGHT TO INCREASE 7-FOLD

Under a scenario where greenhouse gas emissions continue their inexorable rise, the researchers predicted that the number of extreme two-year droughts will increase sevenfold in Europe in the second half of this century

> This projection also suggested that drought-affected cropland areas across Central Europe will nearly double
> Rohini Kumar, co-author, UFZ-Helmholtz Centre for Environmental Research

40 MILLION

hectares of cultivated land affected — equivalent to 60% of all crop areas in the region would be affected

PREDICTIONS

When researchers modelled for moderate emissions, the predicted number of two-year droughts halved compared to the worst case scenario, while the area expected to be hit by the drought also reduced

This suggests a reduction in emissions could lower the risk of these damaging dry periods, said researchers

THREAT TO AGRICULTURE

A two-year dry period presents a far greater threat to vegetation than the single-summer droughts of previous years because the land cannot recover quickly

1/5TH

of the Central European region had recorded poor vegetation health in the last two years of the total land area in the region is extensively used for agricultural purposes, the study found

34%

Emission drop won't slow climate change

Study finds lower greenhouse gases during Feb to June were only temporary and unlikely to influence environment

NO LOCKDOWN IMPACT

PARIS: The unprecedented fall in greenhouse gas emissions from lockdowns during the pandemic will do "nothing" to slow climate change without a lasting switch from fossil fuels, an international team of researchers said on Friday.

Global emissions from the burning of coal, oil and gas could fall up to eight per cent in 2020 after governments moved to confine billions of people to their homes in a bid to slow the spread of Covid-19.

But absence of a systemic change in how the world powers and feeds itself, experts warned in the study on Friday that the emissions saved during lockdown would be essentially meaningless.

Using open source data, the team calculated how levels of 10 different greenhouse gases and air pollutants changed in more than 120 countries between February and June this year. They found that pollution such as carbon dioxide and nitrogen oxides fell in the period by between 10 and 30 per cent.

However, given that the "massive behavioural shifts" during lockdown were only temporary, lower emissions so far this year are unlikely to influence the climate.

Even assuming travel restrictions and social distancing continue to the end of 2021, the team concluded that this would only save 0.01 degree Celsius of warming by 2030.

"Lockdown showed that we can change and change fast, but it also showed the limits of behaviour change," Piers Forster, study co-author and director of the Priestley International Centre for Climate at Britain's University of Leeds.

> The fall in emissions we experienced during Covid-19 is temporary and therefore it will do nothing to slow down climate change. But the government responses could be a turning point if they focus on a green recovery, helping to avoid severe impacts from climate change
> Corinne Le Quere, study's co-author, University of East Anglia

"Without underlying structural change we won't make it," he told AFP.

The 2015 Paris climate deal saw nations commit to limit temperature rises to "well below" two degrees Celsius above pre-industrial levels through sweeping emissions cuts.

It also set a safer goal of a 1.5°C. The UN says that in order to keep 1.5°C in play global emissions must fall 7.6 per cent annually this decade. That is roughly equivalent to the anticipated emissions fall this year. But given that took one of the largest economic slowdowns in history, Forster said it was unlikely to be repeated as countries look to recover.

"If I'm brutally honest, the world is unlikely to decarbonise at the rates required for 1.5°C, but getting anywhere close will make our children's future better," he said.

The study, published in Nature Climate Change, also modelled options for post-lockdown recovery which the authors said showed a unique opportunity for structural change to the global economy.

A "strong green stimulus", which would see an additional 1.2 per cent of gross domestic product invested in low carbon technology could slash emissions by half by 2030 compared with a fossil fuel-led recovery, the authors said.

Vit D keeps vertigo away?

NO SPINNING

Researchers have revealed that taking vitamin D and calcium twice a day may reduce your chances of getting vertigo again — a sudden internal or external spinning sensation, often triggered by moving your head too quickly. "Our study suggests that for people with benign paroxysmal positional vertigo, taking a supplement of vitamin D and calcium is a simple, low-risk way to prevent vertigo from recurring," said study researcher Ji-Soo Kim from Seoul National University in South Korea. Benign paroxysmal positional vertigo happens when a change in head position gives you a sudden spinning sensation, said researchers in a paper published in Neurology.

Florida turtles released in sea

ANIMAL RESCUE

Two rehabilitated sea turtles, rescued at different times and locations by the US Coast Guard, have been released off the Florida Keys. 'Emma', a 168-kilogramme female loggerhead sea turtle, was recovered in June after she was found floating in the Atlantic Ocean off Islamorada. Emma was transported to the Turtle Hospital where treatment included emptying excess air out of her body cavity and a regimen of fluids and vitamins. 'Bubbles', a 100-kilogramme adult female green sea turtle, was found entangled in an abandoned fishing trap line by recreational boaters in mid-June off Long Key. The Turtle Hospital has been rescuing sea turtles since 1986.

27 human genes renamed to prevent Excel from misreading

EXCEL MISREADING

SAN FRANCISCO: Scientists have renamed some 27 human gene symbols over the past year or so to prevent Microsoft Excel from misreading them as dates, said a media report.

Scientists assign to human genes an alphanumeric code, known as a symbol, to coordinate their research.

For example, for "Membrane Associated Ring-CH-Type Finger 1", they used to use the symbol MARCH1.

While using such a symbol in a Microsoft Excel spreadsheet, scientists found that it got converted into a date — 1-Mar —1 due to a default setting.

To prevent Microsoft Excel from auto converting these gene symbols into dates, the HUGO Gene Nomenclature Committee, or HGNC, the scientific body in charge of standardising the names of genes, has taken some steps.

HGNC this week published new guidelines for gene naming, including for "symbols that affect data handling and retrieval," The Verge reported on Thursday.

US woman receives 2nd face transplant

BREAKTHROUGH

BOSTON: For the second time in a decade, a New Hampshire woman has a new face.

Carmen Blandin Tarleton, whose face was disfigured in an attack by her ex-husband, became the first American and only the second person globally to undergo the procedure after her first transplant began to fail six years after the operation. The transplant from an anonymous donor took place at Boston's Brigham and Women's Hospital in July.

The 52-year-old former nurse is expected to resume her normal routine, which all but ended when the first transplant failed a year ago.

"I'm elated," Tarleton told AP, in an exclusive telephone interview from her home in Manchester. She is still healing from the operation so photos are not being made available of her new face.

More than 40 patients worldwide have received face transplants, including 16 in the US. None of the American patients had lost their donor faces until Tarleton.

Dr. Bohdan Pomahac, who did Tarleton's first face transplant, was hesitant to do another and favoured doing reconstruction surgery instead. But his team became convinced of the merits of a second transplant after Tarleton described how much the first one improved her life.

"She really wanted to try one more time," said Pomahac, who led the 20-hour, second surgery. A team of around 45 clinicians removed the failing transplant and then prepared sensory nerves and blood vessels in the neck for the surgical connection. The face was then transplanted and Tarleton will gain sensory and motor function in the coming months.

Sugita Akiko, who recently took over as the Consul General of Japan in Bengaluru, hopes to promote Sake and grape wine here, and encourage Japanese tourists to come to the city to experience Ayurveda and yoga

FORGING NEW TIES

• Vidya Iyengar

As a high school student who studied Indian history, Sugita Akiko, who recently took over as the Consul General of Japan in Bengaluru, recalls being so interested in it, that she wanted to study Hindi. While the dream didn't realise then, Sugita – who visited Delhi and Mumbai in 2009 and 2011 – is hoping that this desire turns a possibility during her term here. Previously posted in Singapore, she came to Bengaluru in June-end, although she got an official notice in April.

As the second Consul-General of Japan in Bengaluru, and the first woman to hold this post, 61-year-old Sugita says she comes from an "older generation" that values tradition as well as career pursuit without compromising on family life. "I serve dishes, clean them at home, and have been actively involved in child caring. At the same time, in my official role, I speak up like a man. I've been lucky not to face any sort of discrimination because of gender in my 40-year career," says Sugita. Her son, Yuki Sugita, who has graduated from university, now lives in Bengaluru.

But she does admit that the gender gap prevalent in Japan's workforce is something that has to be worked on. "The target of 30 per cent of women in the management levels in the workforce, which was to be achieved by 2020 by the government of Japan, might take longer than imagined. As of 2019, there were only 14.8 per cent women in the management levels in both the public and private sectors. Even the lower house of parliament has only a 9.9 per cent representation by women," she points out.

Since she has taken over at a tumultuous time, Sugita is working around the new normal, holding meetings virtually. "It is challenging for me or anyone new, who is starting a new job. At the same time, I'm hoping that this global crisis will, in fact, lead to a digital transformation for advancing social and economic activities. Bengaluru has a key role to play here and it's important for both the countries to work together on digital transformation, in the healthcare sector in particular," she says, adding that the moment calls for patience.

Sugita plans to continue events such as the Japanese food festival and Cosplay walk, which were introduced by her predecessor, Takayuki Kitagawa. "I'm also hoping to promote Sake (made from rice) and wine (made from grapes) here," she says, adding that her agenda also includes encouraging Japanese tourists to come to the city to experience Ayurveda and yoga, which have gained prominence back home. "Many Japanese assume that the Indian weather is really hot. But it's breezy and there's a lot of greenery, which makes Bengaluru a good tourist spot," says Sugita.

> It is challenging for anyone who is starting a new job. I'm hoping that this global crisis will lead to a digital transformation for advancing economic activities
> — Sugita Akiko

Although she has not ventured out beyond visits to 1-MG and Mantri Mall, Sugita has been able to sample some Indian cuisine, courtesy her chef, Sunita Khatri, who has prepared pulao and other rice dishes. Still getting used to the concept of 'Indian Standard Time', she got first-hand experience when she placed an order for a delivery which was supposed to reach by 6pm, but didn't come for two hours. "Later, I realised that the timing had been changed without my being notified," she says. "But I'm adjusting myself to it."

Hard to read scripts when people need help: Sonu Sood

• Express Features

Sonu Sood's philanthropy during the lockdown has earned him a new level of fame and respect. The Dabangg actor, among other deeds of kindness, has been instrumental in helping migrant people stuck in the country and abroad, reach their homes. In the latest edition of Time Pass, a series of webinars organised by The New Indian Express group, the actor spoke at length with senior journalist Kaveree Bamzai about the joy inherent in reaching out to the needy. "Putting a smile on their faces is the most special feeling. No blockbuster has given me such a feeling," he said.

TIME PASS

This new journey for the actor began when he was distributing food to women who had to return to Karnataka. He procured necessary permissions for them, and helped them reach home. During the drive back home, all he saw was people who had similar plights, seeking shelter on the roads and under bridges. "It is easy to blame the government or other individuals, but I believe in doing my bit too. If we all spent 15 minutes every day helping someone, our world would be all the better."

His goals took wings, and so did the challenges. From sending buses to arranging chartered flights overseas to help the stranded, Sonu's work has touched the lives of thousands of Indians across the globe. The actor shared that it wasn't easy and mentioned the long chain of permissions that need to be acquired at every step. "It is a lot of phone calls and video conferences. The going was difficult during the first week, but word spread after that. After that, authorities across states I reached out to, were extremely helpful. Emotions do touch people."

Consequently, the number of requests grew, and so did his team, as volunteers poured in to help. They help him sift through the requests and also pitch in with assistance over the logistics of operations. "Volunteers, who have tasted the happiness of helping someone, decide to stick around. I don't want to miss any genuine request. I have put my family members to work as well." The actor has found several ways to help, including tying up with medicine dispensers across the country to ensure that people in need get it. "Now, it has become a responsibility that keeps me on my toes, because there is someone, somewhere who is always in need of help."

> It is easy to blame the government or other individuals, but I believe in doing my bit too
> — Sonu Sood, actor

But wasn't he worried about his personal safety in times of a pandemic? "If I had worried about my safety, this wouldn't have happened. My family was initially scared, but I need to be there on the ground to do what needs to be done." The actor does remember to follow some precautions. "I ensure that I stay physically away from my children."

Sonu said that the experience has recalibrated him as a person. "I got four-five scripts to read over the last 100 days, but I haven't been able to. It is difficult to concentrate when you know someone is in need of help. I don't know how long I can continue with this, but I want to do this forever." He added that this is the most special time of his life. "I thought I made my parents proud whenever I did a film, but I have truly made them proud only now. Success and failure are temporary, but these 100-odd days will stay with me forever."

'City's biggest concern now is reviving economy'

BENGALURU BEATS

• Chetan Hegde
Restaurateur

The issues that Bengaluru was facing in the pre-corona days and at present are very different. Before the pandemic emerged, it was more about civic issue like traffic, parking, etc. The city developed rapidly, and every area tried to become self-sustainable with having their own restaurants or bars. Initially it started off well, but eventually issues like parking, loud music, over-crowded streets, started arising. We lacked proper planning before the city saw its growth spurt. Earlier, if we had to go shopping or clubbing, we knew we had to go to Brigade Road, but now there is a shopping complex and club everywhere.

As the population has increased rapidly, it has also brought about traffic issues. It might not be the primary issue now, with people working from home, but that's something the city will have to face again once normalcy gets restored. Right now, the biggest concern of the city should be the getting its economy back.

Speaking from the perspective of the F&B industry, even if the lockdown has been eased and restaurants are open to serve and deliver food, we hardly make 10 per cent of the business. Add to that the cost of real estate and salaries to be paid. There is no subsidy coming from landlords either.

With work from home becoming the new normal, many people have left for their native places, and that's understandable since Bengaluru is an extremely expensive city. But we have also lost big revenue there. Every business is interconnected. Since we are facing losses now, we are not able to place the same amount of orders with our meat or vegetable vendors, etc, and so they are also suffering. The government need to find a way to deal with the issue, otherwise almost six months of hardly any business is nothing less than an obituary to different industries.

SOLUTION: Most of our issues will be sorted if we have a clarity on rules. For example, sometime ago, the government banned live music overnight but after a few weeks, it was again allowed. No one is sure about the rules and regulation to be followed. We cannot change the way the city has been the developed, but citizens can always raise their concerns with proper groups to discuss the problems, and the authorities are equally responsible to come up with a proper solution.

Let your mixed feelings about Bengaluru get stirred up, as an influential person talks about things nice and nasty about the city in this weekly column

Serving with dedication: 30 million meals in 10 countries

• Express Features

Robin Hood Army, a zero-funds organisation working with volunteers to serve surplus food from restaurants and the community to the underprivileged, has pledged to serve 30 million meals under its #Mission30M initiative. As part of this, the organisers will be distributing the meals not just to India's rural and urban areas, but also across Bahrain, Botswana, Malaysia, Nepal, Nigeria, Pakistan, Philippines, Sri Lanka and Uganda, with 50,000 volunteers by August 15. The mission, which got underway from July 1, 2020, has already served 12.5 million meals across 143 cities and nine countries in 33 days.

Volunteers aim to serve meals in other countries as well

Founder Neel Ghose says Covid-19 has left millions without a livelihood, resulting in a stark hunger problem. "It is easy to brush off responsibility to authorities, but this is a crisis that needs to be dealt not just by governments but also by civil society," he says. A member of the organisation since 2018, Shubham Patankar says the need of the hour in Bengaluru is more than 10,000 dry ration kits. "Some of the most affected people are community cleaners, daily wage labourers, house helps, auto drivers, etc. They have lost their jobs because of the pandemic. We are able to do this with the help of local authorities," he adds.

VOCAL SAC (IN FROGS AND TOADS)

A skin-flap-airbag which is not a sound amplifier, as is commonly thought but a multi-use neck balloon. A vocal sac stores air for the anuran to 'circularly breathe', allowing it to call for hours without a break. Vocal sacs help propagate sound omnidirectionally within a small frequency bandwidth. They also decrease the 'acoustic impedance' difference between the frog's body and the environment, minimizing loss of sound energy. Vocal sacs and their movements are strong visual and courting signals to females and conspecific males. Frogs and toads are also thought to signal and communicate seismically with their vocal sacs, by vibrations through water and land.

BRIGHT SPOT

FLORAL TRIBUTE

Although based in Los Angeles, artist Michael Gittes wanted to send hundreds of his paintings 3,000 miles away to New York City to remind hospital staffers that he is grateful for their work in the fight against COVID-19. As a means of commemorating their heroics, Gittes gifted a unique floral painting to every doctor, receptionist, janitor, inventory manager, cook, administrator, and nurse at the Interfaith Medical Center in Brooklyn. At the height of the pandemic, the nonprofit healthcare facility was chock-a-block full of patients, sometimes treating over 100 people per day. Gittes wanted to say a special 'thank you', and used syringes to create the expressionist paintings. The framing and shipping of the paintings was facilitated by money amassed by Gittes from private collectors purchasing his paintings. Every flower represents each employee's contribution to tending a garden of life in the Big Apple, while the use of the syringe, he feels, represents the healing power of both the hospital workers and his gifted pieces.

FIT BIT

AGNISTAMBHASANA
(FIRE LOG POSE)

In Sanskrit, 'agni' means 'fire' or 'ignite', 'stambh' means 'log' or 'statue', and 'asana' means 'pose'. It is also known as double pigeon pose or burning log pose. It is an intermediate seated hip-opening asana. Traditionally, it opens the Muladhara (root) chakra. Opening this chakra provides mental and emotional grounding, thus increasing the individual's sense of security and peace.

STEPS
- Sit on the yoga mat with knees bent and feet on the ground.
- Slowly lift your shoulders up and firmly roll your upper arm back. Now press the shoulder blades in backward direction.
- Put your left foot under your right leg outside your hip; keep right leg on the floor. Stack your right leg on your left leg. Make sure that your right ankle is outside the left ankle.
- If your hips are more flexible, you can slide your left shin in the forward direction under the right one. Keep your left heel beside your right hip. If your hips feel tight hips and you sense discomfort, then sit in Sukhasana.
- Press your heels and expand your toes.
- Keep your trunk long, breathe out and fold forward from your groin. Make sure not to round forward from your belly.
- Keep some space between your navel and pubis. Keep your hands on the floor in front of your calf.
- While breathing, note how your torso lifts up slightly; when it does, try to lengthen from your pubis to your sternum. On the next exhale, fold it deeper.
- You can remain in this pose for 1-3 minutes. Breathe in and release the pose, sit comfortably in Sukhasana.
- Repeat the process with the left leg on top.

BENEFITS
- Reduces tension, anxiety and stress
- Stimulates abdominal organs, strengthens legs and calves.
- Excellent pose for stretching the hips, thighs, knees, ankles and the groin.
- In the forward bending variation of the pose, the spine and the abdominal muscles are stretched.
- It generates internal heat which is highly detoxifying.
- It develops a sense of stability and being centered.

LIMITATIONS
- If you have pain in the knees or hips avoid this pose.
- Avoid forward bending variation if you have lower back pain.

SHIFTING THE FOCUS

RUBINATIONS
RUBI CHAKRAVARTI
writer, actor and funny girl

Good morning,
my fellow mood swingers!

You know, I say it as it is! A well-known healer (I'd like to call him a therapist, though he abhors the word) once told me that not taking any type of 'bovine excrement' (I am being polite) and fighting (quite vociferously) for something blatantly unjust, has been pre-programmed into my DNA. Since it fed into my martyr complex I was quite chuffed with what he said, until I discovered some not-so-likeable traits about myself. I understood that when my healer held up a mirror of introspection up to my face, I didn't always like the reflection that stared back at me. We are so caught up into a 'looking good' web of our own making that it is sometimes quite difficult to puncture a hole in that scenario. That is why we suffer ghosts from our past and present, develop fears and complexes, and torture our minds and tie it into knots rather than admit we have a mental illness and need help.

Just this morning I encountered my portly neighbour on our foyer. We exchanged inane pleasantries and with some casual neighbourly chit-chat... which involved a detailed medical diagnosis about his hemorrhoids and the state of his rectum! He explained in detail how he had managed to procure himself a seating ring from Singapore even during these difficult times, to give relief to his 'heynus' (his word not mine)! All this really 'intimate' casual conversation in the foyer was deemed perfectly natural, but, when I jokingly stated that staying locked in during the lockdown has made us all a little crazy, he looked veritably shocked at the suggestion. He immediately retorted that he kept his family in line by being positive and doing 'mindful works.' He implied that depression was a foreign concept touted by psychiatrists to mislead the youth. His remedy was to be silent and pray to a higher power. The 'higher power' I understood but the 'stay silent' troubled me. Here is a man who would discuss the inner working of his private parts with me but refused to acknowledge that mental-health issues exist!

A dangerous trend has overtaken our country and it is another virus that is insidiously threatening to hijack logical minds. Take the number one topic of discussion in our country today. I've had inquiries from Bollywood aficionados from overseas too, wanting the inside scoop regarding the tragic death (suicide) of a handsome actor. Another actor (a curly-haired one with the dubious credit for having a fascination for married men), has cleverly cast aspersions and accusations, baying for the blood of big names in the industry, settling personal scores and somehow tying them into what she calls the 'murder' of this young man. She is ably joined by an 'anchor' that is a one-man judge and jury, who calls people on his show and does not allow them to get a word in.

How ironical, that both these individuals play their moves on a political chessboard, bullying their foes and accusing them of being 'anti-national' when they are busy pitting Indians against each other. They have done the ultimate sin of shifting the focus from the devastation our country is going through, pilfered funds, apathy, lack of medical facilities, justification for playing the religious card, and disregard for the average Indian dealing with sickness, death and economic ruin. My people ask for justice for a suicide and a CBI inquiry on my tax money... yet no one asks for justice or an inquiry for the millions of migrant labourers... my people who languished and perished. This... is my India!

Brunches, Beer & Bonhomie

Take a break from cooking, and feast in style at home over a lazy, indulgent weekend brunch, made by star hotels

If you want to stay in and savour a weekend brunch from the comfort of your home, then there is good news at hand. Several star hotels are delivering a stylish feast right at your doorstep. Take, for instance, The Oberoi, Bangalore, that has introduced Oberoi @ Home bespoke Sunday brunch. The menu, theme and set-up will be finalised after a private consultation with the F&B team and a recce of your home will be carried out to evaluate the space, infrastructure and logistics. Besides delicious dishes, they guarantee subtle floral touches, crockery, cutlery and efficient service.

The culinary team at Sheraton Grand Bangalore Hotel at Brigade Gateway is also dishing out cyclic brunch menus, including delicious Persian dishes, Indian kebabs and curries and desserts prepared by executive chef Gaurav Anand and his kitchen team. Under the Marriott on Wheels food delivery umbrella, this extensive brunch offering is available on Saturdays and Sundays.

At The Ritz-Carlton Bangalore, the focus of the home-delivered 'Weekend Brunch' is on 'S.L.O.W.' Executive chef Sandeep Kalra is using Sustainable, Local, Organic and Wholesome ingredients for his repertoire of dishes, which include salads, dim sums, Thai curries, Indian main courses, Indonesian Nasi Goreng, Braised Ocean Salmon and desserts – all safely delivered along with non-alcoholic drinks.

Adding a focused flavour, Conrad Bengaluru plans to showcase one of their signature outlets each weekend. This weekend, chef Ameet is dishing out his Mediterranean favourites from Tiamo with the 'Weekend Binge' menu. Get ready to savour Lamb Kibbeh, Gambas al Ajilio, Cioppino, Greek Pizza and Orange Cheesecake, all in the comfort of your home.

Hotel manager Sushma Khichar and the culinary brigade at Aloft Bengaluru Cessna Business Park have aptly titled their weekend offering as 'But First, Brunch'. Here you get 21 items on a weekly-changing menu of Indian, Asian and Continental dishes which can be ordered until Sunday morning via a link shared by the hotel. The packaging material for the food is in bio-degradable containers and the brunch is delivered by a member of the hotel team in PPE and a sanitised hotel car.

'The Grand Gardenia Brunch' from ITC Gardenia is home delivered with a kebab platter, sushi, pizza, main course, biryani and desserts. To be specific, there is Paneer Tikka, Galouti Kebab, Dynamite Urumaki, Murgh Tikka Masala, Gosht Dum Biryani, Angoori Rasmalai, Chocolate Truffle Pastry. This takeaway brunch, prepared under the watchful eyes of executive chef Uchit Vohra, can be availed all through the week.

Meanwhile, executive chef Daniel Koshy at the JW Marriott Hotel Bengaluru wants you to enjoy a 'Happiness Brunch' from Merak. On offer is Kra Pao Chicken Spring Rolls, Kung Pao Cottage Cheese, Burnt Ginger and Capsicum Noodles and Chocolate Spring Rolls.

Renaissance Bengaluru Race Course Hotel's 'larger than life' all-day weekend brunch by executive chef Nitesh Singh will give new meaning to post-brunch naps. There is Tandoori Kukkad, Murgh Makhani Khatta Pyaz, Paneer Papad Ki Subzi, Thai Curry, Cheese Cake, Kesar Phirni and more.

Brunches need to be pre-ordered and are available for delivery between 11 am and 4 pm, with a few available all-day and some all-week. Prices start upwards of ₹1,750 ++ for two. The food is transported by the hotel or delivery apps with free-delivery within a minimum radius of the hotel. Bon appétit!

Happy hours extend all the way into the weekend with city breweries celebrating International Beer Day with special offers and brews

This time last year, breweries would be overflowing with tipplers. While residents of Pub City Bengaluru don't need a special reason to indulge in a beer or two, the exclusive offers and brews served for International Beer Day (Aug. 7) only added more punch to the affair. Even as they wait for the government to allow the serving of alcohol again, breweries are choosing to remain in high spirits by extending the celebrations well into the weekend, where customers can swing by for takeaways with discounts, new creations and more.

For instance, Uru Brewpark on Bannerghatta Main Road has come up with two limited editions – a pineapple saison and a coconut milk stout – at ₹199 per litre, which will be available till Aug. 9. Brewmaster Surajkumar Shedbale says both the saison and stout lend themselves well to fruit infusions. The addition of coconut in the stout beer was inspired by South Indian cuisine. And while the lockdown did no favours for business, it did, however, help the beers mature more. "They unexpectedly got more time to mature so now they are extra smooth and creamy," he says.

Windmills Craftworks at Whitefield, on the other hand, has brought down the price of their seven beers on tap from ₹650 a litre to ₹450 a litre for the weekend. The branch at the airport has an addition 1+1 offer as well. Ajay Nagarajan, the CEO of Total Environment Hospitality, says, "We have seven fresh brews on offer – Hefeweizen, Golden Ale, IPA, Mango IPA, Porter, ESB and Weizenbock."

If it weren't for the lockdown, XOOX Brewmill would have had on offer a special mango cider. "But since we couldn't serve that then, we decided to brew it as a special for International Beer Day. So despite the chill in the air, people can enjoy the last remaining flavour of summer," says D. Rekhansh Karamchandani, the founder and MD. Till Aug. 15, the Koramangala-based brewery is offering 3+1 and 5+2 offers on their Belgian Wit, Hefeweizen, Apple Cider, White IPA, Smoked Amper Ale, Citrus IPA, Japanese Dry Blonde Ale and Mango Cider.

SOULFUL

Only in leisure can the mind learn

Relationship is life; without some kind of relationship one cannot exist. The hermit, the monk, however they may withdraw from the world, carry the world with them. They may deny it; they may suppress it, they may torture themselves, but they still remain in some kind of relation with the world, for they are the result of thousands of years of tradition, superstition and all the knowledge that man has gathered through millennia. So there is no escape from it all.

There is a relationship between the educator and the student. Does the teacher maintain, whether knowingly or unknowingly, a sense of superiority, always standing on a pedestal, making the student feel inferior, the one who has to be taught? Obviously in this there is no relationship. From this arises fear on the part of the student, a sense of pressure and strain, and therefore the student learns, from his youth, about this quality of superiority. He is made to feel belittled, and so throughout life he either becomes the aggressor or is continuously yielding and subservient.

A school is a place of leisure, where the educator and the one to be educated are both learning. This is the central fact of the school-to learn. We do not mean by leisure having time to oneself, though that is also necessary. It does not mean taking a book and sitting under a tree or in your bedroom, reading casually. It does not mean having a placid state of mind, and it certainly does not mean being idle or using time for daydreaming. Leisure means having a mind that is not constantly occupied with something, with a problem, with some enjoyment, with some sensory pleasure. Leisure implies that a mind has infinite time to observe what is happening around oneself and within oneself, to listen, to see clearly. Leisure implies freedom, which is generally translated as doing as one desires, which is what human beings are doing anyway, causing a great deal of mischief, misery and confusion. Leisure is having a quiet mind, with no motive and so no direction. It is only in this state of leisure that the mind can learn, not only science, history, mathematics but also about oneself. And one can learn about oneself in relationship.

Can all this be taught in our schools, or is it something you read about and either memorize or forget? When the teacher and the taught are involved in really understanding the extraordinary importance of relationship, then they are establishing in the school a right relationship among themselves. This is part of education, greater than merely teaching academic subjects.

Relationship requires a great deal of intelligence. It cannot be bought in a book or be taught. It is not the accumulated result of great experience. Knowledge is not intelligence. Knowledge can be clever, bright and utilitarian, but that is not intelligence. Intelligence can use knowledge. Intelligence comes naturally and easily when the whole nature and structure of relationship is seen. That is why it is important to have leisure so that the man or the woman, the teacher or the student can quietly and seriously talk over their relationship, so that their actual reactions, susceptibilities, and barriers are seen, not imagined, not twisted to please each other or suppressed in order to placate the other.

Surely this is the function of a school: to help the student to awaken his intelligence and to learn the great importance of right relationship.

'ONE HISTORICAL PROJECT TAKES AS MUCH EFFORT AS 6 COMMERCIAL FILMS'

... Says Darshan, whose film Kurukshetra clocks one year, as he looks forward to playing the role of Madakari Nayaka

A Sharadhaa

Darshan's 50th landmark film, Kurukshetra, clocks one year on Aug. 9, and fans of the Challenging Star have already started the anniversary celebrations by sharing posts and pictures of the actor from the mythological drama. The magnum opus, directed by Naganna, which consisted of an ensemble cast, starred Darshan in the role of Duryodhana, one of the most intriguing characters in the Mahabharata. The film was released in all the four south Indian languages. And at any given point, Darshan first credits the producer. "If not for producer Munirathna, this project wouldn't have taken place. So he remains the real hero of Kurukshetra. The credit goes to all producers, who go all out to undertake such projects," he says.

Darshan is an actor who enjoys a commercial star status in the Kannada film industry, and is equally in demand for playing historical and mythological characters. After portraying the role of the legendary warrior in Sangolli Rayanna, which was released in 2012, he is now looking forward to playing the role of Madakari Nayaka. The film, directed by Rajendra Singh Babu and made under the banner of Rockline Productions, is currently in the making, and the team is waiting for the pandemic situation to subside to resume shooting. Meanwhile, Tharun Kishore Sudhir is currently scripting a historical subject for Darshan, which will be produced by S Umapathy. This is the trio's second collaboration after Roberrt.

"I will be part of historical and mythological subjects as long as we have enthusiastic producers and directors, who have the penchant of bringing history on screen," Darshan tells CE. Playing such roles is not an ordinary job, he says, pointing out that the effort that goes into one historical project is equal to making six commercial films. "There is a lot of homework that goes in each time I take up the responsibility of playing a historical or mythological role. My first point of reference has been watching works of legendary actors like Rajkumar and other senior artistes, who have pulled off such brilliant roles. I read about the character, follow it up with some mirror exercise, and sketch the role and style that suits me. There is a lot of homework that goes into such projects," he explains, stressing that watching a film based on history and mythology is different from reading about it. " I want to take the example of my own son, and children of that age. They can understand history better when it is represented through characters. These are subjects that cannot be analysed and put up in two lines on social media. But there is a lot of depth in the past, and we hope to justify it with the cinematic presence. Such films will be of use for the next generation," he says.

Rakshit Shetty and his team of writers embark on a script-writing exercise

The actor-director and producer is looking to establish his production house, Paramvah Studios, for OTT platform

CE Features

Rakshit Shetty is a filmmaker who always wants to stay updated with the current entertainment scenario. The actor-director and producer, who has understood the power of OTT platforms, is currently working at establishing his production house, Paramavah Studios for the digital world. Rakshit had earlier shared these thoughts on the social media on July 23, on the occasion of his completion of 10 years in the film industry, mentioning that he had taken a break from the Punyakoti (PK) script and has started writing something new and smaller.

That work is going on in full force now. Rakshit and eight other writers have begun the writing exercise and will soon be coming up with a script each, for which the team has been given a month's time. "I don't want writers to compromise. We will only take the projects on floors once the scripts are ready, and only if we can finish the film in a month's time," says Rakshit, adding, "Till now, the writers were writing one story as a team. However, I wanted them to come up with their own scripts, which should be a simple one. Out of that, we will be selecting the best three scripts, which we plan to bring out from our production house."

Rakshit has chalked options on how to go about shooting his commercial films and simultaneously taking forward the three projects. "The situation we are in at present does not allow me to shoot the remaining portions of 777 Charlie or take up Hemanth M Rao's Sapta Sagaradaache Yello, as this film needs us to head to outdoor locations, and requires a huge crowd on the sets. Though my focus has been on these projects, it is something not possible for us to roll now. Meanwhile, if this kind of situation continues for the next two months, I will go ahead and shoot all these three smaller projects, and plan how to shoot in a controlled environment, where the whole team can get locked inside and the film can be shot at one go," he says.

Meanwhile, Rakshit is upbeat about the OTT market. "OTT caters not just to the Kannada audience, since people from other states can also watch the film for its content. Secondly, when we make commercial films, we have to keep certain things in mind, but for OTT, we can shoot the film on a small budget and make it look good. Moreover, it is a platform for writers to experiment," he explains.

Talking about his own script, which he is currently penning, Rakshit says it is going to be a unique film, which is something he wanted to do during his short film days. "But then I felt it was too experimental to take such a film to theatres. Lockdown has certainly prompted me to experiment, by not keeping commercial aspects in mind, and pouring my heart out to do what I want to," he says.

A teenage dance drama with a twist

Navein Darshan

Almost every dance film out there urges you to "dance like your life depended on it". The dance crew at the heart of the film usually takes this advice very seriously and dances like there's no tomorrow. It's part of what makes these films tick. In Work It though, the mantra seems to have been, "Dance like nobody's watching." The characters are delightfully clumsy, and dance to have fun, not so much as a means to please you, and this vibe is highly infectious.

Quinn Acker (Sabrina Carpenter) is a Ted Talk-listening, high school nerd who most top universities would love to have. But her favourite university finds her to be pretty ordinary and lacking the special skills 'that should drive one out of bed.' She is forced to lie about being a part of her school dance team. Quinn then is left with the unenviable task of putting together a dance team from scratch within two months. Her journey to accomplish this herculean task with the aid of her best friend Jasmine Hale (Liza Koshy) results in a highly funny, partly moving ride.

Unlike in your typical high-school dance film, 'dance' isn't the strongest aspect of Work It. Even the final face-off feels more like a Zumba class. But the stellar cast covers all these flaws with contagious cheeriness. When Jasmine tries explaining 'flossing' to Quinn, she assumes it must be something pertaining to oral hygiene. Asked about her style of dance, she dubs herself the 'Illuminator', given that she has only handled the lighting system for performances previously. Such light-hearted mirth results in a movie that works than you expect it would.

Despite sticking to the age-old formula of 'an underdog team's struggle to glory', the film is self-aware enough to take a dig at itself every now and then. I particularly enjoyed the recruitment sequence akin to Shaolin Soccer, where Quinn and Jasmine pick random people for their odd skills.

Setting the mood right in the first act is essential for any film to establish a connection with its audience. Work It does this like a charm, and we realise what we have signed up for right from the beginning. Despite its inherent predictability, the story flows seamlessly, the dialogues are riotous and the music is great too. Make no mistake, Work It could be the sort of films to go on to attain cult popularity.

Adil Hussain shoulders a well-intentioned, passable social drama

Avinash Ramachandran

At one point in cycle rickshaw driver Buchchi Paswan (Adil Hussain) is told that his dreams of getting his son to study in an elite school is like one of the 'haseen sapne of Mungerlilal'. Mungerilal, of course, is a character from one of director Prakash Jha's earlier films who fulfilled his deepest desires through daydreams. However, Buchchi isn't one to be satisfied with just dreaming. He wants to make it a reality, even if it will cost him everything.

Pareeksha begins with Buchchi taking a bunch of school children to the elite (read CBSE) Sapphire School in Ranchi. His son, Bulbul, is an exemplary student but is stuck in the local government school where it's a rarity to even spot teachers. So Buchchi uses hook and unfortunately, crook too to gain his son admission. But this isn't a film about how Bulbul fights obstacles and succeeds in the pareeksha of his life. This is a story about Buchchi and how his life spirals out of control, when he realises he's unable to manage the burden of expensive education. We never get to see how Bulbul (Shubham Jha, whose performance grows on you), who doesn't quite understand basic English, fits into the world of the 'English speaking-sophisticated' Sapphire students.

While this lack of emphasis on Bulbul's life may have come across as a bigger problem, the earnestness of Buchchi and Priyanka (Priyanka Bose) keeps afloat a narrative riddled with cliches. Though Prakash Jha trains all the spotlight on Buchchi, Priyanka is solid as the silent, comforting mother. Her silences are as effective as the sharpness of her meltdowns. But the film is mostly about Buchchi and it is through him that the director delivers a scathing commentary on the education system in India, including the not-so-subtle casteism, and the growing chasm between the haves and the have-nots. Just like every Prakash Jha film, the intent is on point, but in this film, the narrative does feel a tad outdated. For instance, the Sanjay Suri cameo simply exists to serve as a cursory reminder that there are good cops too. Although inspired by a real-life police officer, Sanjay's role as a khaki-clad version of Super 30's Anand Kumar, does little to the overall narrative of Pareeksha.

Despite the proceedings feeling rather dated, the effective performances and honesty in the writing keep us invested. Take the scene where a rich man isn't pleased with the rickshawallah's son going in the same vehicle as his child. We are primed for something heroic to come from the dad in front of his son, who is being humiliated before his classmates. But all Buchchi does is apologise. This lack of response is not only stinging but also reflective of the kind of oppression people like Buchchi are used to. But before we write Buchchi off as a father who can't really stand up for his son, we must remember that he gets a cycle for Bulbul. He is a practical man, and this characteristic is maintained till the end where he gets shown as someone who is always aware of the bigger picture, even if it costs him the smaller joys.

Just like Buchchi, the film too concentrates more on the bigger picture, on conveying the angst against uneven educational opportunities in our society, and much like him, the film too forgets the important smaller details that would have made this story more personal. But it's still tolerable—in a sense, like marks awarded to students for getting the steps right even if the answer itself isn't on point.
